

Labor Holds Wide Lead

British Vote In A Crisis

... Tories Lagging

London (AP) — Harold Wilson's Laborites held a wide lead over the Conservative party early Friday in Britain's crisis election, but computer projections indicated they would not achieve a majority in Parliament.

The projections by the British Broadcasting Corp. and the independent television network ITV both said Labor, although scoring an upset victory, would fall 11 votes short of a majority and that the middle-road Liberals and independents would wind up holding the balance of power in the 635-seat House of Commons.

The BBC projection had Labor taking 307 seats, the Conservatives of Prime Minister Edward Heath 300 seats and the remaining 28 in the hands of the Liberals and the independents. ITV projected 307 seats for Labor, 293 for the Conservatives, 22 for the Liberals and 13 for other parties. A total of 318 are needed for a majority.

In the actual tabulations with 440 election districts counted, the Labor party had 253 seats, the Conservatives 177, the Liberals five and other parties five.

Wilson served as prime minister from 1964 to 1970 when he was ousted in an upset victory by Heath.

Late returns showed the Laborites had pulled in 40.9 per cent of the popular vote, the Conservatives 37.6 per cent, Liberals 18.4 per cent and the other parties 3.1 per cent.

Lord Carrington, the Conservative party's chairman and election strategist, said: "The results so far are disappointing. I do not think there has been a swing to Labor but rather that the Liberals have taken votes from Conservatives."

The final official results are not expected to be reported until some time Friday.

The Labor party normally takes an early lead as results from the cities flow in. The tide of Conservative successes begins running more strongly when suburban and rural counts are announced.

Heath, Wilson and Liberal party chief Jeremy Thorpe all won re-election to their Parliament seats with no difficulty. Heath called this election ahead of time after coal miners decided to go out on strike in the midst of an energy crisis and rising inflation. His party campaigned on the issue of who runs the country, the elected government or the unions.

A party needed 318 for a majority in the House of Commons, and thus to be able to form a government. The leader of the winning party becomes the prime minister.

About 40 million Britons were eligible to vote. Headquarters of the three major parties said about 75 per cent of them or more turned out in wintry weather: snow in Scotland, pelting rains in Wales and a mixture of raw winds, sleet and some sunshine in England. Election day in Northern Ireland, a British province that sends a dozen representatives to Parliament, saw a sudden upsurge of bombings.

Voting stations across the kingdom were open for 15 hours.

Results from the first 10 urban districts to report spelled trouble for the Conservatives. The Laborites not only held their strongholds but increased their margins of victory.

At the same time, the Liberals were showing up second in most of these early-reporting districts with greatly increased votes. In Tory districts they finished ahead of Labor while in Labor districts they finished ahead of the Tories.

Construction Recommendations Scaled Down

By DON WALTON

Star Staff Writer

Following the lead of his chairman, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee Thursday night scaled down its capital construction budget recommendations to conform to current tax rates.

The committee decided to hold its recommendations for new appropriations within the confines of the anticipated revenue from the state cigarette tax construction fund.

Legislative fiscal analyst Eldin

Ehrlich told senators that $9.6 million would be available.

With a series of amendments added to the $8.7 million reduced recommendations of the fiscal staff, the new appropriations reached $9.8 million.

Fiscal staff recommendations had been reduced to "only what is absolutely essential" at the request of Marvel.

The $9.8 million will be joined by $6.7 million in capital construction appropriations previously authorized for 1974-75 spending by the 1973 Legislature to fund $16.5 million in projects during the coming fiscal year.

By holding down its construction budget, the committee was able to free $15 million in federal revenue sharing funds for partial support of the program of state aid to the public schools.

That decision, which will be written into the committee's operational budget bill, reduces the drain on state tax support by $15 million.

Had the committee gone beyond the construction funding available from cigarette tax revenue, it would have put ad-

Cost Of Living In Waverly Increasing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of six articles on growth of a small community near Lincoln.)

By DICK HOLMAN

Star Staff Writer

"Housing was cheaper to construct out here" in Waverly, Rick Carlson said, naming cheaper land and lower taxes among the attractions that lured him and his family from Lincoln.

Although the Carlsons considered more than that in their decision — the school, participation in local affairs, small-town life — many other newcomers of this mushrooming bedroom community to Lincoln move there simply for the dollar advantages.

But Waverly's growth rate, predicted at 10% annually by Lloyd Bevans, both city attorney and city clerk, will no doubt eliminate the pocketbook breaks of living in Waverly and working in Lincoln.

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner points out "the willingness of people to travel some distance to the job in order to have the advantage of living in a community" of 1,600, yet only seven miles from what Lincoln has to offer.

"While taxes may be somewhat less," Warner said, "the cost of living, because of time spent on the road," tends to balance out.

Costs Will Rise

Town planners have "got to keep in mind the total liabilities of the growth of the community," Warner said, noting that with Waverly expected to grow six times its present size in a decade, higher living costs will necessarily follow.

Community Improvement Program Chairman Richard L. Tubey says rates for gas, water and electricity already "are expensive as compared to Lincoln."

New bonds that must be issued for Waverly's planned water tower and sewage treatment plant will accompany higher sewer and water rates, says Mayor Wayne Marolf.

"The more services you have, the more it costs," Marolf said.

Further, "We don't want to overextend our credit," he said. "Then bonds aren't saleable."

Debt 'Rather Minor'

Waverly's bonded debt "is rather minor for a town this size," Bevans said. "Most (of existing bonds) are for street projects that are assessed against the land." Others, for example, include a water line and municipal building.

The board has moved cautiously on expenditures for town improvements. Part of the slow motion has come from reliance largely on federal grants which have been tied up by austerity moves in Washington.

Nevertheless, Waverly in 1973 issued a total of 66 building permits. The town's total assessed valuation increased from $2,341,725 in 1972 to $3,123,200 in 1973.

The 1973-74 Waverly total annual budget is $250,471, according to Bevans. "So far we've gotten along pretty well. The increase in valuation has kept up, so we haven't had to raise the mill levy."

Mill Levy Up

But the total mill levy for residents has increased, from 69.993 in 1972 to 75.341 in 1973. While other community projects have been minimal, the increase then owes largely to the construction of a new elementary school, financed by a $1.85 million bond issue.

Lincolinites, by comparison, paid a mill levy of 64.688 in 1973.

Bevans said, "I don't really anticipate any rapid rise" in Waverly mill levies.

Overall, taxes there don't crunch yet. And there are some apparently hidden advantages.

The three of five Waverlyites who work in Lincoln are technically required to pay the same $8 annual wheel tax Lincolinites pay, but one Lancaster County official said he doubts many Waverlyites pay the non-resident tax.

Politics doesn't seem to be a factor in the town.

As of Jan. 1, 1974, Waverly had 798 registered voters: 364 Republicans, 390 Democrats, and 44 non-partisans, according to the Lancaster County Election Commissioner.

Town Will Grow

Only one thing seems certain: The community will become bloated with people.

"We've got the main line of a railroad running through, and Highway 6," Mayor Marolf said. "There are natural gas lines running nearby, Lincoln is nearby, we're close to a good hospital, we're not far from an airport and not far from an Interstate highway."

Sen. Warner noted that "if the IBM plant become reality" on the tract of land the company owns southwest of Waverly, that would spur immense growth.

"Despite the problems that accompany growth," Warner said, the opportunities Waverly allows "still outweigh" rising costs of living there.

Meanwhile, the town council remains cautious. Carlson said, "We pinpoint a problem and try to find a solution for it." Most often the obstacle, however, is that "the city doesn't have the money or facilities for it."

In other words, if it's "not budgeted," it waits, he said. Anxious incomers take the other view, devoting their time for projects and encouraging community improvements themselves.

Next: Waverly's plans, ability to handle future growth.

SIGNS . . . on interstate changed.

Patrol Given Speed Advice

... 'Use Judgment'

By BOB GUENTHER

Star Staff Writer

To ticket or not to ticket? That question remained unanswered in a number of state troopers' minds Thursday following enactment of bill lowering the speed limit to 55 m.p.h. (See story on Page 9.)

Shortly after the law was signed by Gov. J. James Exon, Col. C.P. Karthaus, patrol superintendent, issued a directive to his 368 troopers telling them to use "sound and reasonable law enforcement judgment" in enforcing the new law.

Beyond that, Karthaus declined to say specifically how strictly the law would be enforced during the week it takes to change the speed limit signs on State highways.

One trooper, who was asked how he would treat a speeder clocked at 65 m.p.h. replied, "I think I'll take my vacation beginning tomorrow."

Another said he would exercise "sound and reasonable judgment" dealing with speeders. Asked whether he would ticket speeders regardless of whether they were going 65, 75 or 85 m.p.h., the trooper again said with a wry grin, "I will use sound and reasonable judgment."

A third trooper said by reading in-between the lines he felt Karthaus was saying, "Give 'em a week to slow down."

Regardless of whether the signs are changed, Karthaus said speeders "absolutely" can be prosecuted for exceeding 55 m.p.h.

"We will be issuing summonses and warning tickets," Karthaus said.

"I feel the citizens of Nebraska have always been of the type that responds quickly to challenges. I think they will cooperate in our effort to save energy and lives."

Karthaus refused to speculate whether the new speed limit will increase or decrease the number of summonses issued for speeding.

He also said he was not ready to project the impact it will have on the number of accidents.

The Department of Roads estimated that it will take one week to place decals on 60 speed limit signs on the Interstate system and 600 on the state's primary highway system.

Merle Reiling, assistant to the state engineer, said another 60 signs along the Interstate will be taken down and stored along with approximately 800 on the primary highway system.

Reiling said the decision to store the signs was made because the department felt drivers did not have to be reminded of the 55 m.p.h. limit "so often." He said the decision has been approved by the federal highway administration.

The 60 speed limit signs remaining on the Interstate will be located at interchanges with numbered highways.

"We didn't feel a need to have a sign for every link or spur," Reiling said.

He said the sign alteration will cost the state $8,000, or approximately $20,000 less than if all signs were changed.

House Passes Pension Reform Bill

Washington (UPI) — The House Thursday passed a pension reform bill designed to assure more than 30 million American workers that the pensions they have earned will be waiting for them when they retire.

The bill is tailored to correct a situation that has left millions of workers without pensions if they quit before retirement age or if their company goes out of business. Only one in 20 workers who quit early over the past two decades has received his pension.

The legislation would set minimum standards for who must be included in private pension plans, how these plans must be funded and how soon a worker must become "vested" in his plan and therefore assured of benefits even if he quits or is fired.

No employer would be required to have a pension plan, but all existing or new plans would have to meet the minimum standards of the bill.

The legislation does not cover government pension plans.

The Senate has passed a similar bill, and pension reform has been listed as a major goal of the 93rd Congress, so it appears certain that a pension bill will be enacted this year.

The bill passed the House 375 to 4.

The basic standards were not an issue in House debate, but a fight developed over how much money to allow self-employed persons to set aside tax-free for personal pension plans.

The bill increased the maximum tax-free contribution to $7,500 after the House turned back an amendment by Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., that would have maintained it at the present $2,500 limit.

The bill also would allow workers not covered by a pension plan under their employer to set aside up to $1,500 a year tax-free for a personal retirement fund. Less than half of the work force is covered by employer pensions — 30 million out of the 80 million work force.

The bill would require that a fulltime worker be included in his employer's pension plan after he worked three years or reached age 25.

Employers would be required to fund pension plans sufficiently to cover the current obligations of the fund.

A federal pension insurance fund — to be paid into by employers — also will be set up to insure the unfunded obligations of pension plans. This would assure a worker's pension would not be lost because of fraud, bankruptcy or other such reasons.

The vesting provisions are the heart of the bill. A worker is said to be vested when he is guaranteed all or a portion of his pension even if he leaves the company before retirement age.

An employer would have to select one of three minimum standards of vesting. He could offer a better deal, but would have to offer one of these minimums:

- Full vesting after 10 years of employment.
- Vesting of 25% after five years, gradually increasing year by year until full vesting is reached after 15 years.

- The "rule of 45," which provides 50% vesting after the sum of an employee's age and years of service reaches 45. Further vesting would come at an additional 10% per year till full vesting is reached five years later.

ditional pressure on state tax support through general fund appropriations or use of revenue-sharing funds.

"This is an attempt to make the recommendations keep to the 11% rate," Marvel said following the meeting, but he stressed that he was speaking only for himself, not for other committee members.

It was Marvel, a Republican gubernatorial candidate, who led the way earlier this week in persuading the Legislature to kill a bill, supported by Gov. J. James Exon, which would have increased the personal income tax rate for 1974 from 11% to 13%.

Exon, who tailored his budget to the revenue anticipated from a 13% rate, said that action requires cuts in the Appropriations Committee's budget decisions or a series of gubernatorial vetoes.

"I think we are showing that we can keep to the 11% rate and still meet needs," Marvel said.

"We are making full use of the money available."

"I think we've done a pretty good job on the operations budget, and that we are in a position not only to defend what we've done, but to be proud of what we've done."

Exon, Marvel said, should now meet "my challenge to instruct your staff to come before this committee and make recommendations to cut the soft spots in your budget. You have only submitted a budget for a 13% rate."

News Summary

Jerusalem — Israel plans to propose the establishment of a buffer zone manned by United Nations troops to separate Israeli and Syrian troops, according to reliable Israeli sources. Under the Israeli plan, to be offered to Secretary of State Kissinger, the buffer zone would be established in the area captured by Israel in the October war and Israel would not return Syrian territory seized in 1967.

Syria Mum On Disengagement

Damascus — Syria's leaders kept their own ideas on disengagement to themselves as they waited for Kissinger to return from Israel with the Israeli proposals. Though no details of the Syrian position were disclosed, one official said that the nation's requirements for a first step included an Israeli agreement on the principle of the ultimate return of Syrian territory seized in 1967 and agreement with the Palestinian refugees.

Egypt, U.S. To Resume Ties

Cairo — Egypt and the United States announced that they would resume formal diplomatic relations Friday, ending a seven-year breach. The announcement came after President Anwar El-Sadat met with Secretary of State Kissinger. (More on Page 2.)

Ethiopia Military Mutiny Grows

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia — Troops and policemen took control of the streets of the Ethiopian capital Thursday night, apparently joining the growing military mutiny. They acted several hours after Emperor Haile Selassie granted new pay increases to the rebelling troops and named a new premier. (More on Page 2.)

Mitchell, Stans Jury Empaneled

New York — A jury of eight men and four women was empaneled to try former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans on federal charges of conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice. The selection and prompt sequestering of the jury cleared the way for what is expected to be a wave of indictments in the Watergate scandals. (More on Page 2.)

Criminal Conduct Said Only Basis

Washington — President Nixon's lawyers released a 61-page brief arguing that criminal conduct of "a very serious nature" is

Pension Plan Standards Bill OK'd

Washington — The House overwhelmingly passed a bill that would establish the first federal standards for private pension plans. The measure, passed by a vote of 375 to 4, now goes to conference with the senate, which unanimously passed a pension reform bill last fall. (More on Page 1.)

Nixon Will Veto Energy Bill

Washington — President Nixon said he would veto the Emergency Energy Bill and vowed that the country would not have gasoline rationing. (More on Page 2.)

Nixon Lawyers Take Narrow Line

©The New York Times

Washington — Lawyers for President Nixon have concluded that the Constitution not only requires a finding of criminal conduct, but criminal acts of "a very serious nature" in order to provide grounds for presidential impeachment.

Putting substance behind President Nixon's earlier vow to "fight like hell" against impeachment and his argument that he can be impeached only for criminal conduct, the White House lawyers draw a very narrow interpretation of the constitutional question.

It places the White House in direct opposition to the conclusion drawn by the impeachment inquiry that holds a president liable for impeachment for acts not indictable under criminal law.

In a 61-page analysis of the constitutional standards for presidential impeachment prepared under the direction of James D. St. Clair and released Thursday afternoon, the White House argued:

"The use of a pre-determined criminal standard for the impeachment of a president is also supported by history, logic, legal precedent and a sound and sensible public policy which demands stability in our form of government."

Carrying the argument one step further, the lawyers asserted, that "not only do the words (of the Constitution) inherently require a criminal offense, but one of a very serious nature be committed in one's governmental capacity."

The study, submitted to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry staff at noon Thursday, is the third such study of the question done by the government.

Earlier the committee's staff examined the same historical and legal background and concluded that impeachment could rest on many acts that are not specifically spelled out in criminal law.

The third study, carried out by the Justice Department, merely concluded that an impeachable offense is open to both interpretations.

Mitchell-Stans Jury Selected

New York (UPI) — A carefully screened jury of eight men and four women was selected Thursday to try former Nixon Cabinet officers John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans on federal charges of conspiracy and perjury.

The jury and six alternates — five men and a woman — were immediately sequestered, but their swearing in was postponed until Friday morning.

If found guilty, Mitchell and Stans could get 50 years in prison each as the first Cabinet officers convicted of a crime since the 1922 Teapot Dome oil leasing scandal. Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding administration, was sentenced to one year in jail for accepting a bribe in that case.

Former Atty. Gen. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Stans are charged with conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury in allegedly using their influence to impede a federal investigation of fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash donation to the 1972 Nixon campaign and then lying to a grand jury about their actions.

"We have arrived at a point where we have a jury which is impartial and will decide the case on the evidence," U.S. District Judge Lee P. Gagliardi said. He praised selected and unselected jurors, saying, "You have all made a tremendous effort here."

The jury, the end product of a weeding out process in which the judge questioned and requested dozens of prospects as to their exposure to the barrage of publicity about the case, will be locked up in midtown Manhattan hotel lodgings — away from newspapers and broadcasts.

Cover-up Indictments Are Expected Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The long-awaited and multiple federal indictments of former high officials in the Nixon administration will be returned Friday by the grand jury investigating the Watergate cover-up, sources said.

There was the possibility, also, of indictments springing from other grand jury investigations in the Watergate aftermath: the 1971 break-in at the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist; illegal corporate campaign contributions; the milk fund and ITT cases; and violations of federal campaign laws.

No return was expected in the case of the 18½ minute gap in one of the White House Watergate tapes, also being studied by a grand jury. The grand jury that has been studying the break-in of Democratic Party headquarters and the alleged subsequent cover-up in the White House, had awaited sequestering of the jury in the New York trial of John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans.

That was completed Thursday. Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski had predicted the three grand juries would return major indictments in February.

That self-imposed deadline was always flexible, however, to allow time for the Mitchell-Stans jury selection and sequestration. It was a precaution to avoid influencing that jury with new indictments.

For $775,000, Demos Settle Watergate Suit

Washington (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee agreed Thursday to settle for $775,000 its $6.4 million civil damage suit against the Committee To Re-elect the President over the break-in of its Watergate headquarters in June, 1972.

Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss told a meeting of the committee's executive committee that an agreement had been reached on a "hard figure." He said lawyers were working on remaining procedural details.

The executive committee unanimously approved the settlement after Strauss said "we could use the money."

Under the agreement, Strauss said, the re-election committee would drop its countersuits against the democrats.

Egypt Resuming Relations With U.S.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Proclaiming "a new era," President Anwar Sadat announced on Thursday that he is resuming full diplomatic relations with the United States and inviting President Nixon to visit Egypt.

He added that Arab oil ministers will meet this month to decide whether to lift the oil embargo against the United States.

With Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at his side, Sadat declared to newsmen: "As long as Dr. Kissinger is handling the whole thing, everything is okay." The American secretary was in Cairo to confer with Sadat on, among other Middle East topics, efforts to arrange negotiations between Israel and Syria on disengagement of their Golan Heights forces.

Kissinger met with Sadat for 3½ hours at Sadat's rest home near the pyramids at Giza just outside Cairo. They looked over maps of Syria's occupied Golan Heights, on the northeastern Israeli border.

Asked afterward what advice he would give President Hafez Assad of Syria, Sadat said: "To give Dr. Kissinger the opportunity to work out and achieve what he has achieved on the Egyptian front."

That was a reference to the troop disengagement pact engineered by Kissinger for Egyptian and Israeli forces in the Sinai peninsula. The Egyptian and Israeli troops completed the first phase of their pullout last month.

Kissinger surprised observers by discussing with Sadat some Israeli proposals for a Syrian front disengagement before he had discussed them with Assad, whom he is to see in Damascus Friday night.

The Israeli Cabinet met in Jerusalem to further refine the Golan Heights proposals, readying them for Kissinger to pick up Friday on his way to the Syrian capital for the talks with Assad.

Turning to U.S. relations, he made the announcement that full diplomatic relations with Washington were resuming. His disclosure came soon after a similar announcement from the White House.

Sadat also said Washington has agreed to aid Egypt "with technical assistance in certain stages of clearing the Suez Canal." A U.S. Army and Navy demolition team already in Egypt checking ways of defusing mines and unexploded ordnance in the canal, which has been closed since 1967.

Pay Hike For Legislators Rejected By House Panel

Washington (UPI) — A House committee voted Thursday to reject President Nixon's plan to give each legislator a $10,300 pay raise by 1976, but Congress appeared ready to accept an immediate, one-shot boost of $2,295 a year.

Torn by election-year fears of voter resentment, the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee approved 19 to 2 a resolution by retiring Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, to kill Nixon's entire proposal for a three-year, 24% salary increase for members of Congress and most other federal officials.

Under Nixon's plan, which will go into effect March 10 unless the House or Senate objects, judges and top-level federal appointees would get the same increase, but Cabinet members and Supreme Court justices would get only a single, 7.5% boost next Jan. 1.

Raw Farm Products Cost Up

Washington (UPI) — Prices for raw farm products, which helped push retail food prices to new records in January, rose another 1.5% in the month ended Feb. 15 and approached their all-time peak of last August, the Agriculture Department reported Thursday.

The Department's monthly farm price reports aid the increase in average prices for all raw products was due mainly to higher prices for corn, wheat and dry beans — all of which set records — and for potatoes and lettuce.

However, cattle and hogs, which account for a larger share of the consumer food bill than most other foods, both declined along with eggs.

Endalkatchew Makonnen

Selassie's Power Eroded

©The New York Times

Addis Ababa — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia appointed Thursday a new premier in an attempt to placate mutinous army troops.

But it appeared that the almost absolute authority which the emperor had exercised for more than half a century had been deeply, and perhaps permanently, eroded.

"Something very fundamental seems to have happened and Ethiopia will probably never be the same again," a foreign diplomat said.

It appeared that most of the armed forces had rallied to the support of the 2nd Army Division in the northern city of Asmara, which mutinied Monday night to demand higher pay, but whose demands have since escalated to an insistence on political change in this eastern African empire of about 26 million diverse and mostly poverty-stricken people.

Soldiers and policemen appeared in considerable numbers in the streets of Addis Ababa Thursday evening and imposed what appeared to be a form of martial law.

In a broadcast, the 81-year-old emperor announced that he had appointed Endalkatchew Makonnen, who had been minister of posts and communications, as premier to replace Akilu Abde Wold, who resigned Wednesday with the 18 other members of the cabinet.

Endalkatchew is a member of the nobility, son of a former premier and a former delegate to the United Nations.

The emperor also appeared to have virtually capitulated to dissident army troops by saying reports that "we would take action against the northern army units for their petition to us are without foundation."

The emperor also backed down by offering a new monthly pay increase of $6 to privates, although he said Wednesday the strained Ethiopian economy could not bear further military pay increases.

Since Sunday he has granted pay increases of $12 to a new level of $56 a month.

Psychiatrist Says Nokes Under 'Unusual Stresses'

McCook (AP) — A psychiatrist testified Thursday that confessed murderer Harold Nokes was under unusual stress in the period leading up to the grisly slayings of a rural Culbertson couple.

But Dr. Louis Martin stopped short of saying that Nokes, 45, was mentally ill.

A three-judge panel will pass sentence on Nokes March 22.

Martin was the only witness called Thursday when Nokes appeared before the judges in Red Willow County District Court.

Nokes has pleaded guilty to murder charges in the slayings of Edwin and Wilma Hoyt.

Martin, who works at the Hastings Regional Center, told a crowded courtroom that Nokes was under continuing stress between April and September of 1973, and said unresolved tension existed between Nokes and the Hoyts. Martin said the stress centered on a relationship Nokes had with the Hoyts' daughter, Mrs. Kay Hein.

Under questioning by defense attorney Dick Hove of Kearney, Martin stopped short of saying Nokes was mentally ill.

He referred to "unusual stresses" Nokes had been under that continued through the time that he shot Edwin Hoyt in the basement of the Nokes' home. Martin testified the pressure or Nokes mounted after he shot Edwin Hoyt, and that Wilma Hoyt's overt physical reaction to seeing her husband killed put Nokes under further stress.

Nokes confessed that after he shot Edwin Hoyt, the victim's wife began to scream and tried to run up the basement steps. That is when he shot her, his confession said.

Both bodies were dismembered. Portions of the bodies were later recovered from Harry Strunk Lake.

Under questioning by Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas, Martin said he had examined Nokes for two hours on Feb. 26, and had read parts of Nokes' 156-page confession.

Martin said he read "about half," the confession and went through the remainder "haphazardly."

Martin said he administered no psychological or psychiatric tests during his examination of Nokes.

Douglas told the judges that Martin had spent "only 15 minutes" more with Nokes than he had spent as a witness at the hearing, and declined to ask further questions.

In his final statement, defense attorney Robert Monroe asked the court not to decide on a death sentence.

Monroe told the court that to merit a death sentence, "aggravating circumstances must outweigh mitigating circumstances."

Monroe said mitigating circumstances included Nokes' prior clean record, the pressure which Martin said he was under, and that Nokes was not acting "rationally or deliberately" when the crimes were committed.

If a death sentence were handed down, it would automatically be appealed to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

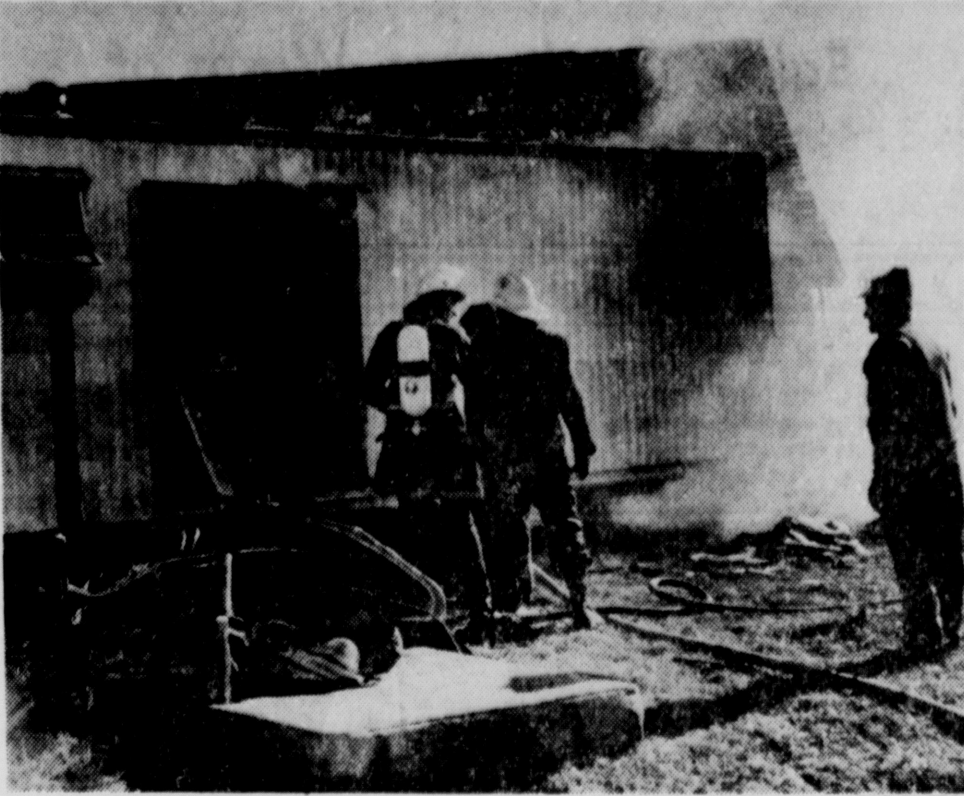

Nokes, 45, has pleaded guilty to one count of first degree murder and one count of second degree murder.

His wife, Ena, 43, who was sentenced earlier this year to five years imprisonment on charges of illegally disposing of bodies, surrendered to the Red Willow County District Court Thursday to begin serving her prison term.

Mrs. Nokes, who had been free on $25,000 bond, was remanded to the custody of Red Willow County Sheriff Jim Short for transportation to the Nebraska Women's Reformatory at York.

Mrs. Nokes' attorney, Richard Hove of Kearney, said that her surrender would not affect plans to appeal her sentence. He has until March 14 to file an appeal.

Short also took Nokes to the State Penal Complex in Lincoln. Nokes had been held in the Frontier County jail in Curtis since he and his wife were arrested last year.

NO ONE HURT... but home a total loss.

Mobile Home Gutted By Fire

A fire Thursday morning gutted by interior of a rural mobile home owned by Lyle Vergith and located one mile south and one-half mile east of Sprague. There were no injuries.

A spokesman for the Southwest Rural Fire District said the blaze apparently started near the furnace and water heater. He said the home would probably be considered a total loss.

Fire trucks were at the scene for several hours. The blaze was discovered by Vergith, who phoned for help in smoke so thick he said he had difficulty dialing, according to the spokesman.

Man Injured In Power Mishap

A Tekamah man was listed in "serious" condition at St. Elizabeth Health Center with injuries he received when he came into contact with a power line at 56th and Linden Thursday afternoon, according to Fire Lt. Howard Cook.

Cook said Charles Wentz, 32, suffered extensive burns to his back and legs when he accidentally backed into a power line carrying approximately 7,200 volts while working a power-lift bucket.

Cook said Wentz was employed by the VIP Electric Co.

Theatre Group Elects Officers

Brandee Dworsky was elected president of Theatre, Inc. of Lincoln at the annual meeting Thursday night. The group produces mellerdrammers at the Gaslight.

Other officers elected include Verne Gibson, vice president; Marie Muffley, secretary, and John Burkhart, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Helen Ferguson, Marcell Dreier, Elaine Bullard, Linda White, Joyce Klamm, Eleanor Gibson, Helen Klappal and Gary Fusselman. Ex-officio members are past president Linda LeWorthy and director Lee Schoonover.

The mellerdrammer season will open May 15 with "No, No, A Million Times No."

Assessor Fund Dispute Ruling Has Qualification

An opinion by the Lancaster County attorney's office holds that the Lancaster County commissioners exceeded their authority in a dispute with the county assessor only if they "made it impossible for you (the assessor) to carry out your statutory duty."

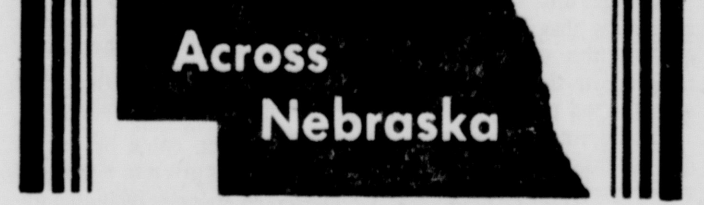

The opinion sidesteps any position on whether the county commissioners did actually make it impossible for County Assessor Fritz Meyer to carry out his statutory duties.

Meyer had asked for an opinion on whether the county board acted properly in transferring to the county commission budget $70,000 requested by Meyer to update the 1970 reappraisal of Lancaster County.

In his opinion, Deputy County

Falls City — An unimproved 80-acre tract belonging to the Ida L. Fritz estate sold for $73,000 or $912.50 per acre at public auction. The buyer was Gerald I. Bangert, who lives northeast of Falls City. Observers believe this is the highest price ever paid for an unimproved 80 acres in Richardson County. The land is located six miles north and one mile east of Falls City.

Wayne, NPPD Reach Agreement

Columbus (AP) — The Wayne City Council has approved a resolution authorizing an electrical connection agreement with the Nebraska Public Power District. The 10-year agreement allows for the purchase of growth power, emergency power and economy power from NPPD, it was reported. Wayne's electrical energy needs are currently supplied by the city's diesel-fueled generating units.

Stromer will be in Washington to serve as chairman of a session to train young Republican leaders.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

An absolute factual determination of matters relating to the Legislature's refusal to return the state to a 13% income tax is next to impossible to make but we cast our lot largely with Gov. J. James Exon. On the other side, it is our opinion that State Senators Richard Marvel and Terry Carpenter are playing some kind of cheap political game.

A majority of the Legislature, apparently, simply lacks the courage to do what needs to be done or the intelligence to figure it out. That includes the entire Lincoln delegation in the Unicameral with the exception of Senator Steve Fowler who voted for the return to the 13% figure.

Just consider the situation yourself in light of a few generalities. The 11% income tax figure is more than a 15% drop. Even with an expanding state economy, that means a reduction in tax income for the state.

On top of that is the inflation factor, pegged at 8% for 1973 and not likely to be much less than that for 1974. It simply does not make sense to think that state agencies can continue to operate even as they were with the 11% figure.

Marvel and Carpenter throw in a lot of double-talk about what the governor said last year and about fixing the tax rates when the demand for income is apparent but that is no better than the hog-wash it sounds like. Marvel is simply parlaying the idiotic action last November of the State Board of Equalization, which he and Carpenter helped engineer, into an acceptable fact.

Marvel talks about a tax revolt if the 13% rate is made retroactive to Jan. 1. If that is the case, then it is his fault and that of Carpenter and the state board. It is no reason for the Legislature to refuse now to act responsibly.

If anything, it is a reason for the Legislature to censure Marvel and Carpenter for their irresponsibility. If the voters buy the kind of fiscal malarkey that Marvel and Carpenter are peddling, they ought to have their heads examined.

What the two of them are doing is putting the state in a box, hoping in the process to make Exon look bad. The choice we now have is to cut back drastically on the real and legitimate needs of state agencies and programs or face a monumental tax problem in 1975 and 1976.

If either of those chickens would come home to roost, Marvel and Carpenter would then crow about mismanagement by Governor Exon. Make no mistake about it, Marvel and Carpenter are maneuvering the state into one heck of a headache in the very near future.

Incredibly, with them in the fiasco is State Senator Jerry Warner whose long-fought-for improvement for state aid to education hangs in the balance. And then there is the ordinarily thoughtful veteran senator, Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, swallowing the Marvel-Carpenter business hook, line and sinker.

We do not entirely buy the governor's reaction. His position is that he will vigorously pursue spending cuts to match the 11% figure. He, too, could use a dose of good judgment in setting his priorities.

His fixation with neat fiscal packages leaves him devoid of leadership. He should be willing to stand up for current needs and fight for them, even if that means meeting the problems of the 11% figure in 1975.

He is overly preoccupied with an excessive cash flow syndrome. The governor is right in wanting the 13% income tax but he is wrong in refusing to look at any and all alternatives.

Marvel and Carpenter are putting the people of Nebraska in a meat grinder and Exon, unwittingly, is contributing to their staying there.

New Studies Outgrowth Of Women's Lib Action

WASHINGTON — The women's liberation movement has spawned an academic brainchild — women's studies, a new branch of learning in higher education. Like the black studies movement that preceded it, the idea of women's studies was born as protest but quickly established itself as a valid field for scholarly attention.

Women's studies have caught on with remarkable speed on campuses across the country. When the 1960s ended, there were only a few scattered courses dealing with women or woman's place in society. In the current academic year, at least 2,000 separate courses are being offered in at least 300 institutions and the number of the latter is growing all the time.

"Image of Women in Western Civilization," "The Idea of Women in Philosophy," "Women and the Movies," "Language of Sexism," "Linguistic Behavior of Male and Female" — these are among the 2,000 course titles. Most are in the fields of English, history and sociology. But more and more courses are being added in anthropology, economics, the sciences, and psychology. Women's courses have even invaded the pre-medical and pre-law school curriculums.

To speak of women's studies means more than single courses, however. The trend is toward the development of what is called a "women's studies program." This means the creation of a new unit in the academic structure, hence recognition by the institution of women's studies as a distinct area of study or at least a sub-specialty within a traditional discipline. An institution with a women's studies program allots part of its budget to the new unit, appoints a director and staff, and awards degree credits to its students.

More than 80 institutions have full-scale women's studies programs. Approximately a dozen of these offer a bachelor's degree to students who major in women's studies, eight others permit students to take a minor in this field and in many others, where students put together their own major-minor program, students may earn a B.S. degree with special emphasis in women's studies.

At four institutions, students may work toward a master's degree in women's studies. These are George Washington University in Washington, D.C., California State University in San Francisco, the Cambridge Goddard Graduate School for Social Change in Plainfield, Vt., and Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y. In addition, the Ford Foundation is supporting some 15 doctoral fellowships in women's studies and about as many faculty fellowships.

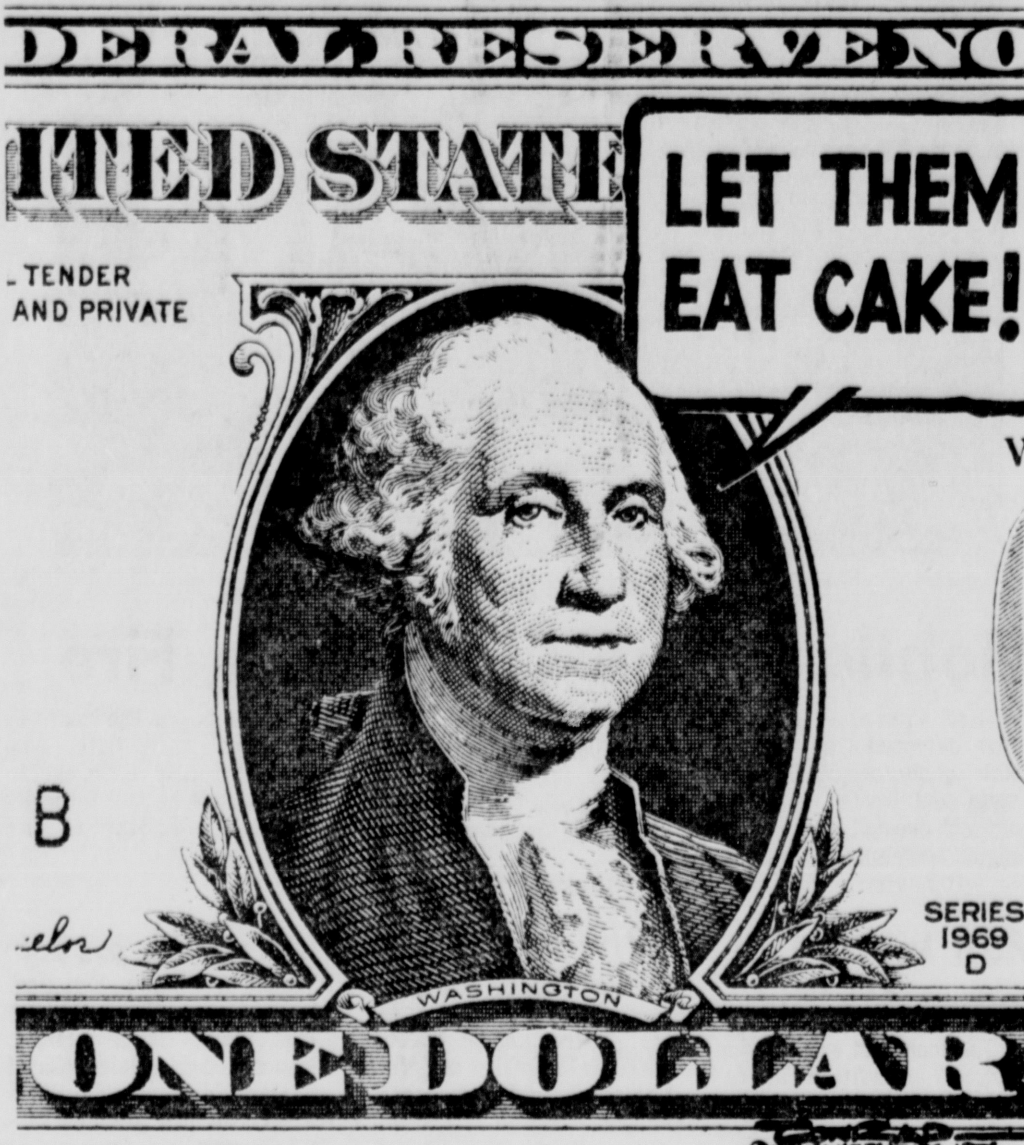

Massive pressure from women's groups and an instant positive response from women students account for the swift growth of women's studies. The increasing number of women in faculty positions — itself a product of the women's liberation movement — helped goad collegiate authorities into taking action. Women's studies committees in professional and learned societies also played a part.

The basic argument for women's studies is akin to that used by black studies leaders — that academia, like society at large, had ignored the role of a major contributor to national and world culture, and that it was time to fill the gap.

Will women's studies last? They will last "as long as women's interests." Women's studies committees in professional societies also played a part.

Taking The Low Road

The line is usually firmly drawn on issues in a general election campaign, when the major party nominees can voice their differences and spell out options for the voters.

But that doesn't mean an intraparty primary campaign has to divorce itself from the issues and dissolve into a name-calling alley brawl. The fledgling Democratic contest for the lieutenant governor nomination thus far unfortunately deserves that billing.

While two candidates — Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton and Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue — have stood pretty much above it, Gerald Whelan of Hastings, Gov. Exon's preferred running mate, and Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff have descended into the pit and are engaging in a tiresome and petty exchange which has little to do with the office they are both running for.

In the latest round, Whelan has hinted that Carpenter is senile and is a freeloader on lobbyists. Carpenter, referring to Whelan's relative lack of statewide name recognition, says he wouldn't recognize the governor's choice if he saw him on the street, but the Scottsbluff lawmaker suggests that Whelan might as well join Exon's payroll now, as a liaison man to the Legislature.

Is it too much to hope that the candidates for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor — all four of them and whoever else may enter the race — address themselves to their own fitness for office and not make unsubstantiated speculations about the other guy's fitness; explain their political kinship to the governor or how they differ with him and talk about the issues before the state instead of slinging mud?

It is unrealistic to expect that charges and counter-charges of a personal nature can be kept entirely out of a campaign. Furthermore, it's assumed that the candidates, being adults and political veterans, are capable of defending themselves. But election campaigns should be more issue-oriented than personal. And this does not seem to be the case thus far. Whelan and Carpenter have embarked on the low road. Hopefully, they will see fit to raise the level of campaigning.

Middle East Prospects Brighter

The Middle East situation took a heartening turn for the better mid-week when Syria released a list of Israeli prisoners taken during the Yom Kippur War last October. This was the prerequisite Israel had firmly insisted upon for working out troop disengagements along the border areas between Syria and Israel.

Substantial agreement on the troop disengagement, in turn, is seen in many quarters as cause enough for a lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

Further, it was announced this week that the U.S. and Egypt would resume full diplomatic relations, which were severed after the Six-Day War of 1967.

These positive developments in Middle East affairs can be attributed in part to joint U.S.-Soviet pressure brought to bear on the situation and in part to Sec. of State Henry Kissinger's unique and persuasive brand of personal diplomacy. Although agreement on the prisoner list was reached before Kissinger arrived in Damascus, his jet-hopping from the Syrian capital to Jerusalem to Cairo and back, a repeat of the performance which led to troop disengagement along the Suez canal, has been the factor which has tied everything together.

In a column earlier this week, James Reston of the New York Times noted that European leaders are wary of Kissinger because they don't know what he's up to. They don't like the secrecy which surrounds his diplomatic maneuverings.

The point is that it works. He does manage to defuse the Middle East bomb.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Whosoever Destroys A Soul

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Meeting James Mulligan, you might think at first that his life felt into a standard American pattern. He is a naval officer in mid-career, a captain who lives here in a nice suburban house and goes to business school, a thoughtful man with a muscular build.

But anyone at all observant would soon notice a special intensity in James Mulligan. Emotion is near the surface. When he talks about the United States, he says he loves it so much that he never wants to leave it again — not even for a Caribbean holiday. It is not just sports nostalgia when he quotes Lefty Gomez, the Yankee pitcher of the 1930's, as saying: "I'd rather be lucky than good."

Mulligan spent seven years as a prisoner in North Vietnam, and that experience can never be very far from his consciousness. Not that he volunteers to talk about it; that brings nightmares, and he prefers as he says to look forward. But I would guess, after talking with him, that a year after coming home he still feels with some bitterness that not enough Americans know what it was like. He is right about that.

To put it bluntly, Mulligan was tortured. His body was roped into knots of unbearable pain — a torture that many of the prisoners have described. He was kept in leg irons for 16 months, in solitary confinement for 26 months in one stretch and over time another 16. Not many of us, I think, could imagine surviving that kind of mistreatment.

Mulligan is sure he would not have lasted much longer if the torture had not stopped and conditions in the camps improved at the end of 1969.

Why did the North Vietnamese do it? Various reasons have been suggested. Mulligan says it was to force propaganda statements from the prisoners, confessions of war crimes and the like. Why, then, did he and the others resist? In the end everyone broke anyway, so why suffer? Did it really affect anything to have propagandistic confessions from prisoners?

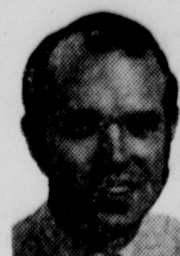

"I just didn't want to come out smelling," Mulligan says. "Everything smells today. Americans don't trust their government — political leaders, military leaders, anyone — because people don't accept moral responsibility. It's a moral question — you stand up for your rights as a human being."

understand the indivisible nature of humanity.

We have to learn again and again that no cause can justify inhumanity. More than most American experiences, the Vietnam war has obscured perception of that moral imperative.

Some persons critical of the war seem to regard the reports of how the American prisoners were mistreated as a distraction from larger truths. The United States assaulted peasant societies on a backward peninsula of Asia; it killed and destroyed on an enormous scale; its intelligence agents used torture and murder, too, and helped to build the cages and pay the torturers still operating in South Vietnam. And so, the implication is, why divert attention from those greater horrors of past and present by remembering what happened to a few hundred American prisoners?

But that is only a mirror of attitudes on the other side. Some who favored the American war in Vietnam thought the cause — opposing communism — so important that stories of cruelty done in its name were only distractions. It was just part of the game when Americans napalmed villages or dropped Viet Cong suspects from helicopters or used herbicides whose poisonous effect on South Vietnam, we now learn may last a century.

Arts Center A Dream?

The proposal to build for the city and the university a $10 million performing arts center might seem to be more pie-in-the-sky dreaming than realistic thinking, particularly with this week's run on fiscal conservatism in the Legislature.

Ten million dollars is a whale of a lot of money, as University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner observed last week after the presentation by the theater design consultant who studied the matter.

Still, it's an idea this community ought to do more than dream about.

Obviously, there are more questions than answers now.

One question, however, ought to be answered for good. The consultant, George Izenour of Yale University, suggested the NU Coliseum wouldn't make the best setting for the performing arts, even after $6 million worth of renovation.

It would work, Izenour observed, but not all that well.

And he also noted it would mean no chance of use of the Coliseum as a men's physical education building, a facility which the Lincoln campus needs in the near future.

There are other good reasons the Coliseum shouldn't be converted for such a use.

For one, it's not in the best location for a joint university-city performing arts center. Parking would be a problem. And its exterior design is hardly suited to the aesthetic considerations that ought to accompany such projects.

The alternative location for a new building, on the block which houses the Temple Building and some businesses, would make much greater sense.

It would get the performing arts activities into a geographical setting that includes Sheldon, the Woods arts building, Architecture Hall, the music building and Kimball Recital Hall.

And it would provide an important buffer area between the downtown core and the university campus, offering that very physical tie between campus and community.

Other questions obviously remain.

Surely, many will want to know if the university and the community really need such a grand facility, just for a little music, dance and drama.

But part of the answer to that question ought to be recognition that this community's opportunities in the performing arts go far beyond "a little music, dance and drama."

Although the performing arts opportunities in the city aren't officially catalogued, a week-to-week glance at the Sunday Focus will tell the most casual observer that a lot goes on. More, in fact, than most people would have the time or the money to take advantage of.

Construction of a major performing arts center probably would lead to even more opportunities, as availability of a multiple-use auditorium generates more interest and increased activity.

But a study of potential uses for such a facility also ought to include study of uses of other performing arts facilities in the community.

Izenour did some of that, suggesting that Kimball Recital Hall is the only really good building in the area, but one with limited uses.

His comments indicated he did not take a look at the Community Playhouse or the auditorium at Nebraska Wesleyan University. Again, however, those are limited use structures, although they obviously are valuable additions to the community's performing arts resources.

Still, at some point a rather broad-based study group from the community and the university ought to be involved, not only to certify need, but also to permit the fullest discussion of the options for both construction and financing.

Finally, the biggest question is the money.

I suspect some will want to know if it really will cost $10 million to build what this community and university ought to have in the way of a performing arts building.

And the answer surely is "yes," assuming the facility will be as flexible in use as the one Izenour proposed. He's been involved in enough such projects that his cost estimates are probably about on the mark.

But the final figures still wouldn't be in until after the plans are drawn and the contracts bid.

Who will pay is another question — a crucial one.

Since the facility would be a valuable addition to the university's academic programming in music and theater, it's obvious the state should have some share in the cost.

But the Lincoln community itself may be the biggest beneficiary, and thus it would be fair to turn to the community for a major portion.

Perhaps a three-way split could be arranged, with the city and the state sharing one-third each and contributions from individuals, corporations and foundations sharing the other third.

Who knows what the best method would be?

That, again, could be one of the questions given to a group of interested citizens, including university and civic leaders and others involved in one way or another in the community's performing arts life.

However it's to be done, no one should just write the idea off as a pipe-dream. It would be a major factor in the drive to enhance the "good life" of Lincoln and the state.

The Evaluation

Lincoln, Neb.
I suggest that Dr. Sabata, Ph.D., is the one who has failed to do homework. I do have more questions.

(1) Where was he five years ago when a badly needed service was being initiated, the Crisis Center? It lasted six months and was washed out, supposedly for non-funding, but it never got off the ground because of internal conflict between administration, social workers and house-parents. I was there, but where was he?

(2) About two years ago, the ex-acting director of the Crisis Center wrote a highly emotional letter to the editor attempting to block the tax funds for the "Behavior Modifier" unit. My voice was the only one heard to answer his letter. Where was Dr. Sabata?

(3) Where has he been in the last 20 years when Whitehall's reputation was reduced to a shaking of heads and a clucking of tongues by the members of the surrounding community? I have been a part of that community. Has he?

(4) Where was he 30 years ago when the center was a home for infants? I was there working in the nursery. Was he? Mr. Rudell's greatest accomplishment was to eliminate small children from the home.

I would also like to answer a few questions:

(1) True, the new unit replaces North Hall, but it is an addition because it is supposed to be a completely self-contained unit, school, kitchen, rooms, etc.

(2) I did not advocate not using the cottage dining facilities. I asked if the central diningroom that is as old as the home is still a necessary unit. It is used daily and is a complete institutional dining-room and kitchen.

(3) The school is used for exceptional children but it may not be essential now since by law public education is being forced to institute programs and education for all children.

I am not interested in whether Mr. Rudell's job is easy or hard. It is his choice and I assure you he will survive all storms. However, any tax-supported institution must be open for evaluation and questions as to the needs of the community, the way the needs are being met and whether they are being met to the fullest extent with the least amount of money necessary. They should, however, be funded to fulfill their purpose. Along with this funding for new programs should be trimming of the excess and the old.

An evaluation might convince the community their money was being well spent. If an evaluation cannot be tolerated, we should abolish the whole institution.

No Laughing Matter

Lincoln, Neb.
Two weeks ago I sat down to watch the Mary Tyler Moore show on Channel 10.

At the very beginning, I was very disappointed. The character of Ted Baxter appeared on his news program and announced that on this particular occasion he would not give his customary news but, rather, he would pray. At this point there was much canned laughter.

He then began by saying, "Our Heavenly Father," and this was followed by canned laughter. He then spoke what could be considered a prayer and again the canned laughter followed, after which he closed with an "Amen," and then came the canned laughter.

The entire episode was presented as something humorous, something to be laughed at. This made the idea of prayer as something to be laughed at. However, when the phrase, "Our Heavenly Father," was used and canned laughter followed, suggesting to the viewer that it was something for him to laugh at, I not only felt disappointed but hurt. I did not watch any more of the program.

Today thousands of people, perhaps we could say millions, take the name, "Heavenly Father," seriously and pray to Him seriously. To all of us, prayer is no laughing matter. I am keenly disappointed in CBS and have written my feelings to them.

Hiss Case

Falls City, Neb.
Many ask why the liberal press is so vicious toward President Nixon. One need only recall the freshman congressman who, alone, believed Whittaker Chambers' testimony over the liberal media's darling, Alger Hiss!

It was Nixon who ferreted out the truth that Alger Hiss was lying and not Chambers. Hiss, at the elbow of FDR, was a Soviet agent. The liberal press who lionized Hiss and denigrated Chambers was caught with egg on its face. The New York Times and particularly the Washington Post (Katherine Graham) vowed they would never let Nixon get away with embarrassing them. Hence, the Watergate affair was blown up all out of proportion to its importance.

The liberals feel that because Hiss was condemned, so were they. For after all, wasn't Hiss' thinking merely an extension of their own? Hence, the endless campaign to clear Hiss.

As Chambers so succinctly put it, "The liberals always retrieve their wounded." (No conservative retrievers have come forward for Agnew.)

GOP Hopefuls Discount Watergate

By The Associated Press

Will the waves of Watergate wash away one of the most solid Republican congressional seats in the Midlands come next November?

Six GOP candidates seeking a chance to fill the post being vacated by veteran 3rd District Congressman Dave Martin of Kearney appear to be in general agreement that Watergate and other ills associated with the Nixon Administration will have a much greater impact on congressional elections in other parts of the country than in Nebraska.

The candidates, contacted by the Associated Press this week in the wake of President Nixon's latest news conference, generally expressed support for the President and noted that residents of the sprawling, traditionally conservative 3rd District are finding talk of Watergate increasingly tiresome.

Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell said she was confident a Republican would win the 3rd District post. "I wouldn't be in the race if I didn't think so," she added.

She said the President has made "a major contribution to international peace and said the office "should be respected by all citizens."

Mrs. Smith said she did not expect the President to be impeached, adding, "The people don't want this issue dragged out for partisan political purposes."

Jack Langford of Kearney, a retired Navy flier who teaches political science at Kearney State College, also said people in the 3rd District are tired of Watergate.

On impeachment, he said: "I wish Congress would either drive it or park it. I don't think they intend to either. I think they want to drag the issue out for ever and ever."

Langford noted that it is traditional for the party in power to lose ground in an off-year election and he said if Republicans lose no more than 30 seats in the House and a dozen in the Senate it will be no worse than average.

Dr. Don Blank, a McCook dentist, said the country needs justice at every level, but he said he supports Sen. Barry Goldwater's stance on impeachment: Get on with it or get off his back.

He said people appear to be more concerned about inflation and the state of the economy than with Watergate and related issues.

State Sen. J. James Waldron of North Platte said Nixon's troubles "certainly will hurt the party," but not as much in Nebraska compared with other states.

He said Republicans should try hard to retain the 3rd District seat because the party will lose so much in the rest of the country.

Waldron, who said he does not support impeachment, said that Democratic candidate Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox "will have a better chance if a strong administration backer is nominated."

State Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney said the effect of Watergate would be minimal in Nebraska.

"The voters here will evaluate all the facts," he said. "They are not the type to buy pigs in poke."

He added: "Long before Watergate, Nebraskans, and especially western Nebraskans, were scrutinizing politics very closely and this is why candidates and politics are generally very honest in our state."

Stromer said he believes the President is innocent until proven guilty.

James E. Wenger, a Grand Island insurance agent, said the President "has done a lot of good in world affairs and got us out of Vietnam, but his domestic policies leave a lot to be desired."

Wenger said he did not approve of the ceiling on beef last year.

He said if the President is innocent of wrongdoing, "it would be nice if he would give the facts to the public and dispell the doubts."

On impeachment, he said he could not make a decision until all the facts were in. He said, "On the surface I can't see how they could have enough to proceed, but I don't know all that will come out in the weeks ahead."

However, he said, "I can't see how it (Watergate) would be hung on someone out here."

The seventh announced Republican candidate, the Rev. Gerald Lundby of Hildreth, was not available for comment.

Horticulturist Crams To Earn Citizenship

Right now Dr. Sotero Salac knows more about the United States than he knows about horticulture. At least, that's how the University of Nebraska Extension horticulturist feels after cramming for several months to earn his citizenship papers.

And all the studying paid off — Salac became an American citizen on Feb. 14, marking Valentine's Day as more than just a day for hearts and flowers for the Salac family from now on. Salac was born in the Philippines and came to the United States in 1958 to study at Texas A & M. During the course of his studies, he met and married Linda Salud, who will be collecting her citizenship papers this summer. They have four children.

How does it feel to have the luxury of choosing the country to which you claim citizenship? Salac reacts, "I'm very elated about the whole thing. We like Lincoln and we like Nebraska. It was an extremely difficult decision to give up my citizenship in the Philippines but I'm very happy about my decision. The United States has been so good to us. It's the best country in the world and the country to which I want to be a citizen."

The procedure involved in becoming a citizen is not necessarily difficult but it is long and involved. Salac explained that he was listed as a permanent resident — another word for an immigrant — and he had to remain at this status for five years. The five-year term expired in July, 1972, and Salac applied for citizenship papers in August.

The Extension horticulturist devotes most of his time to the roadside beautification project, conducted for the Nebraska Department of Roads, in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Transportation. His project puts to use woody ornamentals and wildflowers to beautify highway driving and, as a side benefit, has spurred on environmental awareness and boasts of a collection of 220 native and exotic species of woody ornamentals.

Salac also gives his advice to many groups and organizations as part fulfillment of his Extension position, and delves into various research projects. His roses and annual flowers plots attract thousands to the annual Flower and Lawn Day, which he coordinates at the Field Station near Mead.

Propane Dealer Cutting Price

A Lincoln fuel dealer reports that propane prices are going to take a substantial drop, however, they will continue to remain well above the price charged for the fuel a year ago.

Gary Engle of Lee's Propane at 625 O St. said Thursday that the company is cutting its price to the consumer by 7 cents a gallon.

The cut in price results from two factors, according to Engle. Lee's supplier, Phillips Petroleum, is cutting its price to its dealers by 6 cents a gallon because it was able to buy a larger amount of fuel from domestic suppliers instead of importing high-priced fuel.

The extra penny in the reduction stems from a mathematical error in calculating the May 15, 1973, margin of a half-cent a gallon. Lee's decided to make it a full penny, resulting in a total 7-cent reduction in the price.

Engle said most of the fuel the company sells is used to heat rural homes and to heat trailer homes. "We do have some grain dryer accounts and a few farm tractors, but farmers have been turning to diesel fuel to power tractors in recent years," he said.

"We do see some people switching their cars to propane, which at current prices is actually cheaper to operate a car on than regular gasoline," he said.

Engle said that the price would not drop to the levels experienced a year ago but he expected prices to stabilize at levels slightly below present prices.

Engle blamed high propane prices during the past winter on "brokers who cornered the supply during the summer of 1973 and then refused to sell the fuel. This forced the major companies to import high-priced foreign fuel," he said.

Chadron Rail Accident Fatal

Chadron (AP) — A car clerk was killed Thursday morning when he accidentally stepped in front of railroad cars being shoved onto a track at the Chicago-Northwestern yards here, authorities said.

The victim was Steven M. Davis, 31, of Chadron.

Company officials said the accident occurred at about 3:13 a.m.

Panel Will Invite College Officials

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Angered at criticism of its budget recommendations for technical community colleges, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee Thursday decided to summon a number of college officials to meet with it next week.

Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said some college officers have made "violent and vicious statements which are basically unfounded" in reaction to the budget recommendations.

Senators and staff members were particularly angered at a letter to Marvel from Robert Schleiger, executive director of the state system of technical community colleges, in which Schleiger described the recommendations as "a political budget."

Some proposals made to the committee by the legislative fiscal staff were "arbitrary and capricious," and "totally unrealistic," the letter stated.

"Inadequate"

The budget approved by the committee is "inadequate to meet the objectives of providing comprehensive education" within the college system, Schleiger wrote, and will respond neither to current nor projected needs.

Legislative fiscal analyst Eldin Ehrlich said the staff prepared its recommendations on the best information it could acquire under circumstances which were not fully cooperative.

But, Ehrlich said, the staff is "quite willing and most anxious to work with" college officials to resolve any problems.

College officials "fail to understand the legislative appropriations process," he said.

"We have to give them what they need, not what they want," Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney said.

Bones Of Contention

Staff members pointed to the Mid-Plains and Central Nebraska technical community college areas as the chief bones of contention in the budget.

Officials from those areas, along with Schleiger, will be asked to meet with the committee next week to discuss their differences.

Marvel said officials "should have sounded off at the public hearing" on the operational budget request rather than waiting to offer their criticism

Exon Axes Bill To Add Investigators

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday vetoed legislation which would add 15 criminal investigators to the State Patrol.

In his veto letter to the Legislature, Exon said he acted "in the interest of fiscal responsibility and prevention of tax increases."

The Legislature, over Exon's objections, voted Wednesday to kill a bill to increase the state income tax rate from 11% to 13%. Shortly after the action, Exon warned the Unicameral he would have to exercise his veto even more than usual. The veto of LB77 was the first to occur after the warning.

The governor said the legislation would require the spending of $250,000 more than he had recommended.

Helmet Bill Is Amended

The Legislature's Public Works Committee decided Thursday a motorcycle rider should not lose points from his license for not wearing a helmet.

An amendment to that effect was added to a bill which would require motorcyclists to wear helmets, LB795, and the bill was sent to the floor of the Legislature by the committee during an executive session.

Beautiful Natural Responsible

after the committee had acted on staff recommendations.

Staff members told the senators that college officials have failed to provide them with a total picture of their financial status, specifically including cash balances.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, who sat in on the committee session, said local boards operate under the philosophy that they are "autonomous and the state can't tell them what to do."

'Real Tough'

It's going to be "real tough for them to change," he said.

In other action, the committee sent to the floor LB938, a bill authorizing the University of Nebraska to sell approximately 1,000 acres of land in the Havelock area which it has used for agricultural research.

Activities which had been applied to those properties will be transferred to the agricultural field laboratory near Mead. Funds derived from the sales would help operate the lab.

NU would retain about 350 acres on either side of the intersection of 84th and Havelock Avenue.

The transfer has been planned since the 1962 acquisition of the Mead facilities from the federal government.

Meanwhile, the committee amended its proposed operational budget bill to write in 13 pages of instructions to the Department of Education on the expenditures of its appropriations.

To Draft Plan

The amendments direct the department to draft a state plan for elementary and secondary education in the state, and earmark funding for special education programs and vocational rehabilitation.

A $10,304,350 appropriation would provide reimbursement for special education programs and transportation of handicapped students. If the funds, designed to meet the requirements of LB403, enacted by the 1973 session, are inadequate, the department is authorized to seek a deficit appropriation from the 1975 Legislature.

In vocational rehabilitation, $880,196 is earmarked for expenditure by the Department of Corrections and $1,255,000 for use by the Department of Public Institutions.

Warner's Aid Bill Is Amended

By United Press International
Sen. Jerome Warner's state aid to schools bill, LB772, passed its second floor test in the Legislature Thursday after adoption of several amendments offered by Warner.

Nebraska's level of aid, now at $55 million annually, would rise to $120 million during the 1975-76 year, if LB772 were enacted into law.

Before advancing the measure, the lawmakers turned down on a 10-15 vote a proposed amendment by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell, which was aimed at raising the amount of state aid to schools in rural areas.

Several legislators, including Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell, supported Whitney. Anderson said it is "very obvious those being shortchanged are those in rural areas," many of whom pay high property taxes because they need a lot of property in order to make a living.

Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said the formula for state aid in Warner's bill is "a hazy area," difficult to comprehend. "But I do understand dollars and cents," he said in speaking for the Whitney amendment.

Whitney said what he was trying to do was give "a little more equalization aid to marginal school districts with a fairly large amount of tangible property."

The bill will be held on final reading until the governor's bill to put limitations on school expenditures catches up with it.

Bill To Stagger Vehicle Registration Advances

By The Associated Press
Motorists who found themselves standing in line Thursday to beat the March 1 deadline for registration of motor vehicles can take heart.

The Legislature Thursday gave first-round floor approval to a bill aimed at eliminating the long lines by staggering registration of motor vehicles over the entire year.

Under the bill, new registrations issued when a car is sold would be good for one year from the date of issue. According to the Department of Motor Vehicles, registrations should be fairly evenly staggered after about four years because of the turnover in motor vehicles.

Millard Sen. James Dickinson, sponsor of the bill, LB821, said it should eliminate the long lines, especially in populous counties.

The bill was one of 21 advanced from general file during an afternoon session devoted to non-controversial bills.

Included in the advanced bills was Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's LB877, which places a $1,000 limit on political contributions. A violation of the law would be a felony. It also places more reporting requirements on candidates and their campaign committees.

Another bill okayed, LB0124, allows cities to determine what officials are needed and hire them without the Legislature creating the position.

Before advancing LB983, which provides that the adjutant general of the National Guard hold the rank of major general, the Legislature approved two amendments offered by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter.

One amendment would provide a $100 bonus for each year a person enlisted in the National Guard. The bonus would be paid when the person enlisted and could not exceed $600. The other amendment appropriates $50,000 to the guard for a campaign to encourage enlistments.

55-Mile Speeds Adopted

By The Associated Press
Nebraska adopted the 55-mile per hour maximum speed limit for its highways Thursday.

Moments after receiving it from the Legislature, Gov. J. James Exon signed into law emergency legislation, effective immediately, putting the state in compliance with the federal emergency highway energy conservation act.

The bill lowers to 55 m.p.h. speed limits which had been 75 on the Interstate, 65 on hard surfaced state highways, with some variations for trucks.

The Nebraska bill was sponsored by the Legislature's Public Works Committee as LB873. It contains a provision, advocated by Exon, which permits the governor to revise the speed limit if the federal government does so at a time when the Legislature is not in session. The change would be subject to legislative confirmation after the body convenes.

The bill also provides that the lower speed limits will remain in effect until June 30, 1975, or until the President declares there is no longer a fuel shortage requiring the limitation, whichever comes first.

The votes against final passage of LB873 were cast by Sens. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, Ernest Chambers of Omaha, John DeCamp of Neligh, Blair Richendier of Walthill and J. James Waldron of North Platte.

Agricultural Information Bill Passed

By The Associated Press
A bill broadening the powers of the State Agriculture Department to disseminate information on farm product prices and market conditions was passed 43-0 on final reading in the Legislature Thursday. A companion Bill, LB888A, appropriating $40,000 for the purpose, was passed 41-2.

Present law authorizes the department to participate in dissemination only of poultry and egg prices. The Agriculture Committee's LB888 extends this authority to "agricultural products produced throughout the state of Nebraska" and permits a telephone arrangement for the dissemination.

Other bills passed on final reading:

LB771 — Provides that interest from investment of specific county funds be credited to the specific fund. 43-0.

LB925 — Provides for a nominee for the holding of certain state securities. 40-0.

LB925A — Appropriates $9,795 to carry out provisions of LB925. 40-1.

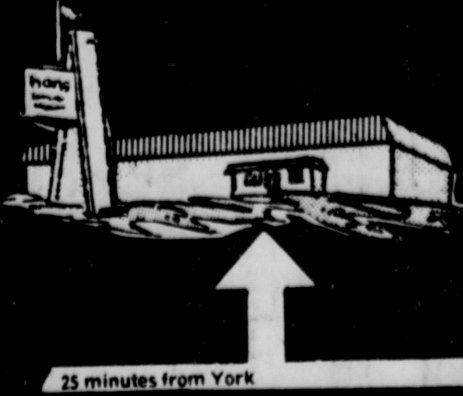

LB954 — Revises standards for deposit of county funds in banks. 42-0.

Foreign Car Import Restrictions Baked

Chicago (UPI) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock Thursday called for temporary restrictions on all foreign car imports to avoid "an all-too-likely economic disaster."

Addressing a conference on world trade, Woodcock also called for export restrictions and the establishment of world agriculture stockpiles.

POSTCARD

by

San Francisco — Lunch in the North Beach Restaurant (to give the spaghetti alla carbonara a vote of confidence) and ran into Tom Swift who handles a refrigerator publicity account.

He said (in a chilly voice): "America is becoming a nation of two refrigerators in every home. The two-refrigerator home is the status symbol of today."

The refrigerator press agent put his icy hand on my arm. "Warn the public," he said coldly. "Double your freezers and you double your neighbor's envy."

I find this is absolutely true. The number of refrigerators in use are double what they were 10 years ago.

We have come a long way since grandma forgot to empty the drip pan under the ice box. We are electrically controlled these wired days.

To keep nature natural, I keep plugged into household current. Electrical current cooks my food. It refrigerates the left-overs. It heats the house in winter. Turns on the air-conditioning in summer.

The mysterious stuff Ben Franklin found on the key at the end of a kite string is more important than fire.

If you do not pay your bill ("Important Notice: We note that your account, etc.") the electric company turns off the juice. And, baby, you either freeze inside or perish of summer heat.

The house goes dark. The TV is blank. And you start cooking over wooden coat hangers in the fireplace.

Pay the bill, Joe, and stay comfortable.

When I was a Boy Scout I learned to make fire without matches. At least, they told us how to do it.

It is an Indian trick. You twirl a stick in a socket in another piece of wood. By and by, the dry tinder in this socket begins to smoke. You blow on it. Fire. The Boy Promethues.

This did not happen to me. I twirled and twirled and all I got was blisters on my twisting hand. I never got fire. I never even got smoke.

However, it was an important thing to know.

Better they should have taught me how to change fuses.

One thing I learned about refrigeration: It is absolute heaven for nylon.

If you have nylon sweaters or pantyhose, you should keep them in the box at a nice temperature. They last longer that way.

Angora sweaters do better in the box, too.

But that's not the point. The point is that two boxes give you tremendous social advantage. The two-refrigerator house has replaced the sports car and the sports cap with the leather rim.

Said the electrical press agent: "Imagine the consternation on your one-refrigerator neighbor's face when you say 'Fetch us a couple of beers, my dear. They're in the other box.'"

Tom Swift, the electrical press agent, said the appliance industry has made a survey of such things.

It turned out happily.

"What we found is that people don't turn in the old refrigerator. They put it in the basement. Or they move it into the playroom—keep it full of beer and Cokes.

I saw this same thing in country towns in Mexico and in Honduras.

Refrigerators are a luxury. Even electricity is pretty new in some back country towns.

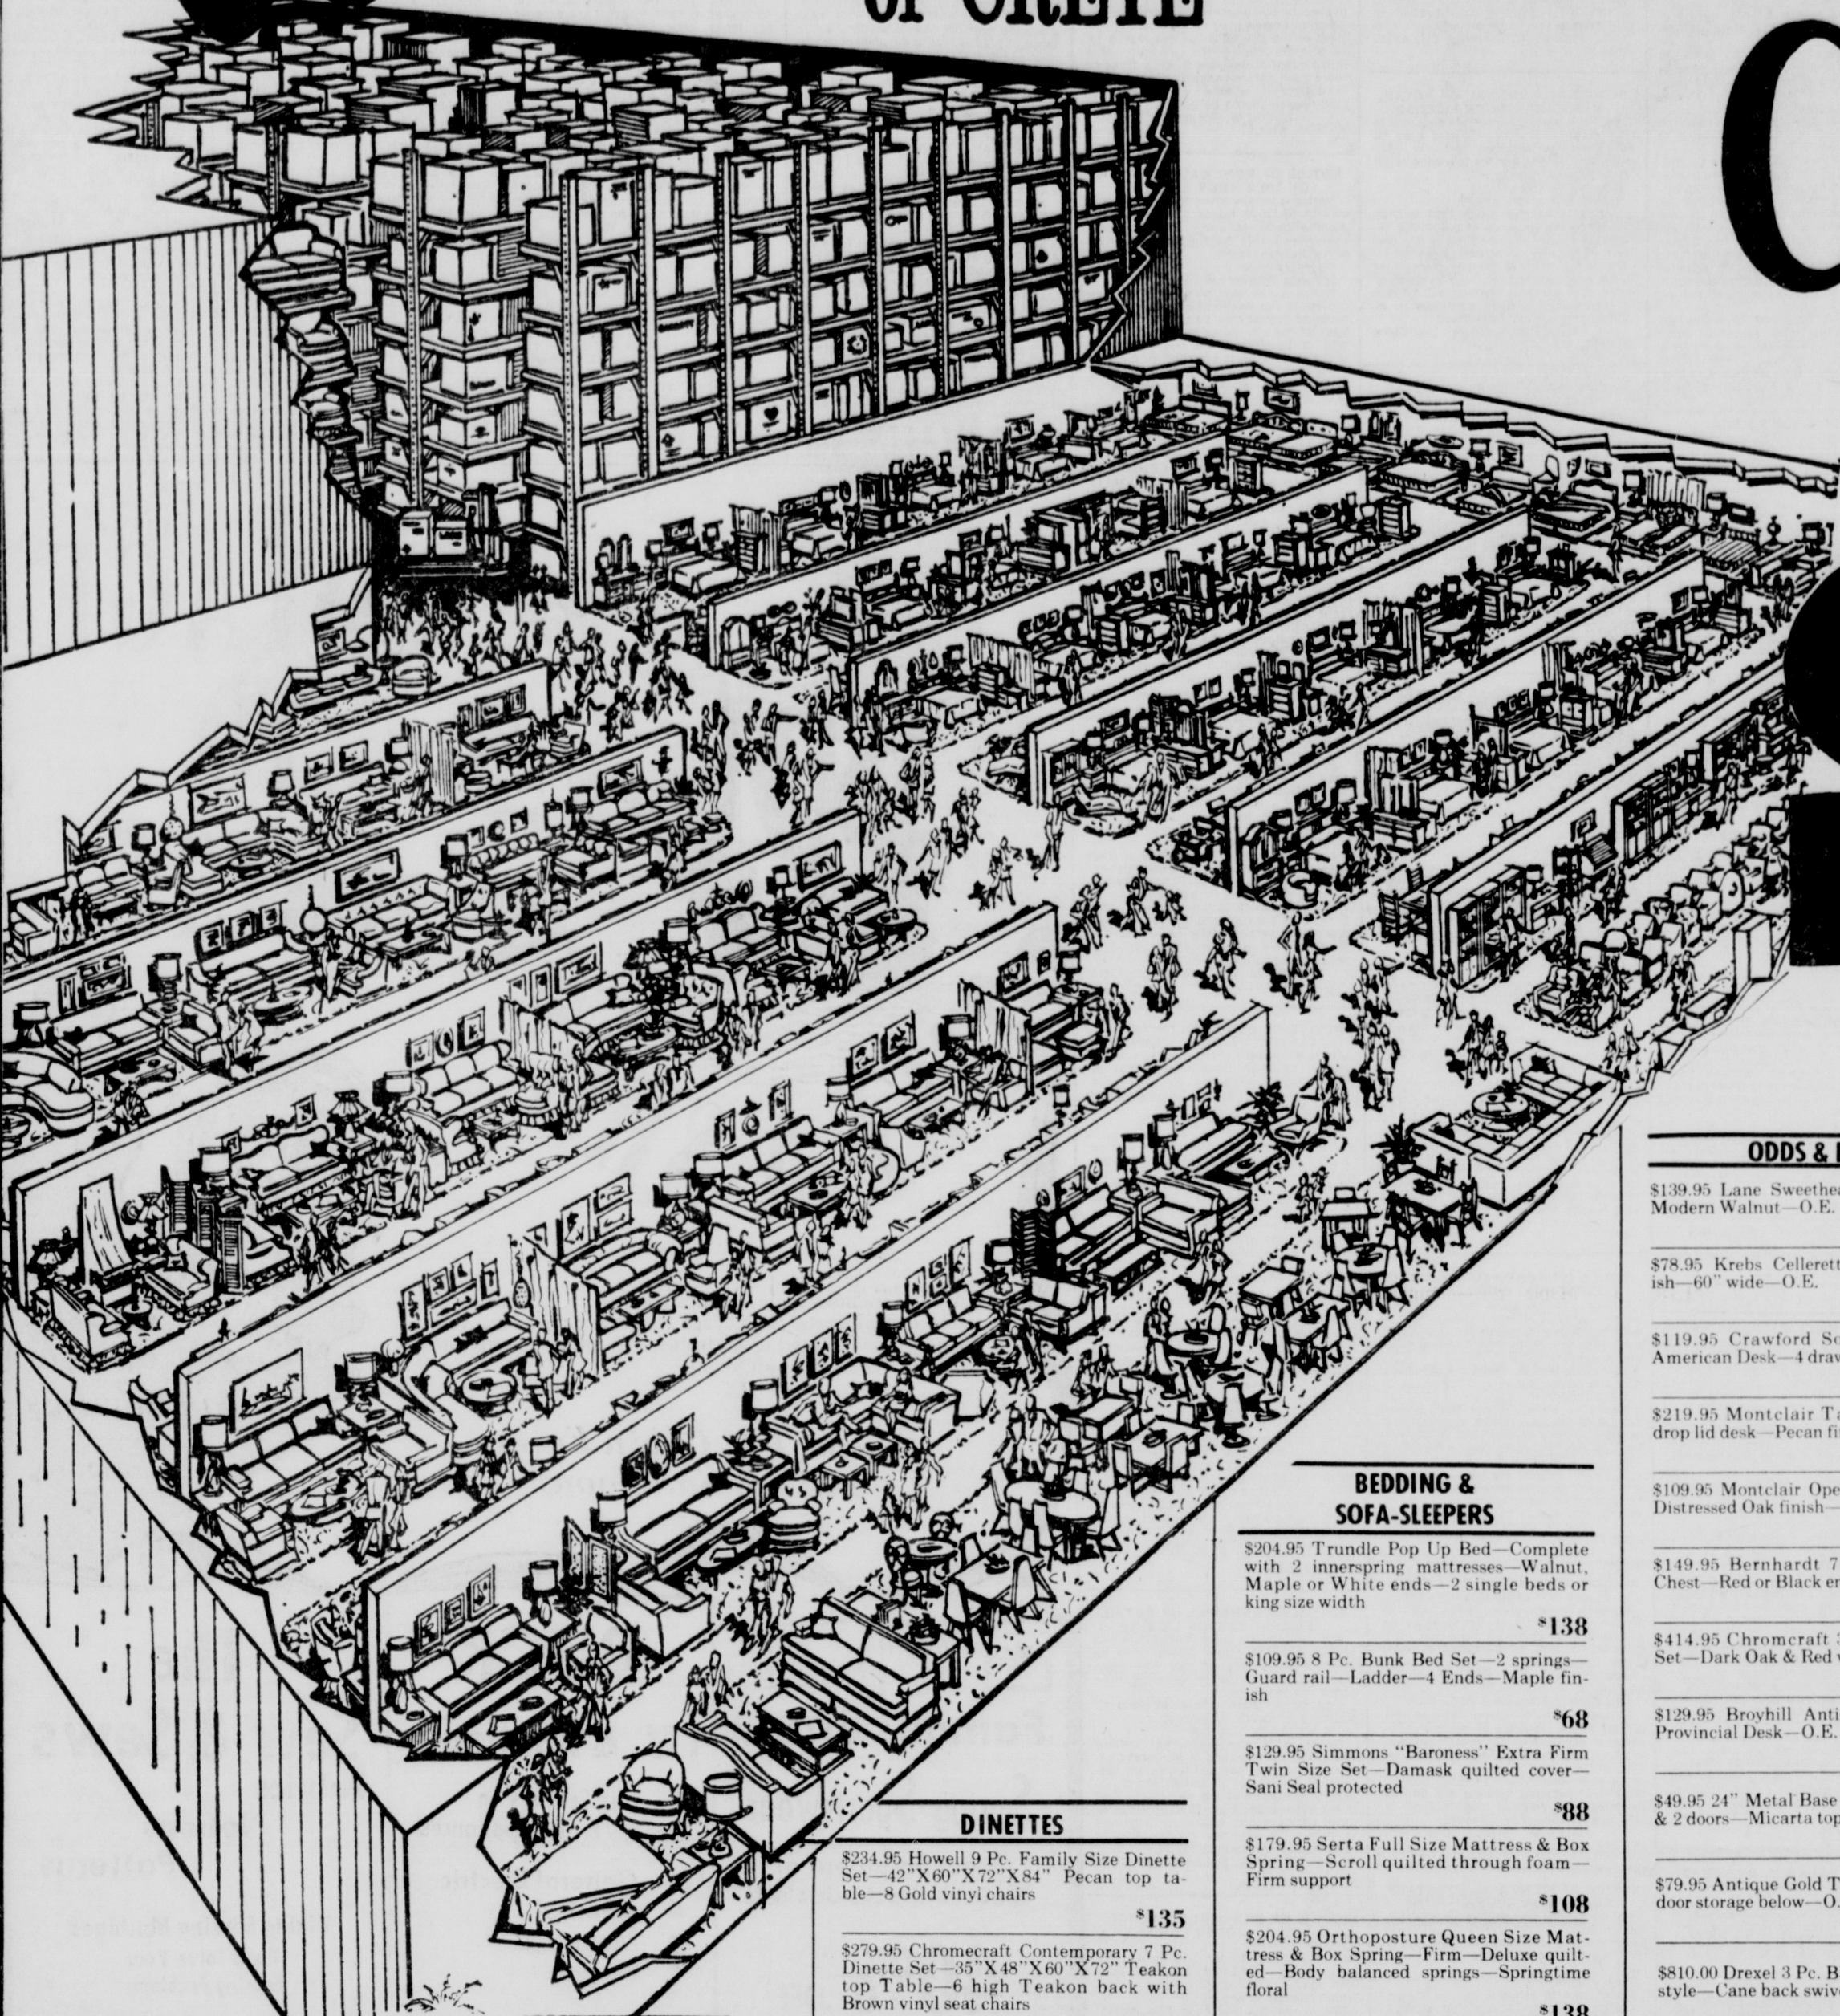

When a family gets a refrigerator, they put it right in the living room. Right in the most prominent place in the house. It is a remarkable object.

They put it out where people can remark about it.

UNL Women Voice Need For Expanded Child Care

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Child care, not only for low-income students, but for middle-income students and faculty and staff personnel, was the primary concern of students testifying at an open hearing of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor's Commission on the Status of Women Wednesday afternoon.

The hearing was designed to acquaint students, faculty and staff persons on the commission with the concerns, interests and problems of women on campus.

Sue Aitchison, coordinator of the Women's Resource Center at UNL, called for the commission to investigate and/or administer a survey "to determine day care needs of students, staff and faculty and how availability of day care would affect their status on campus."

Ms. Aitchison also asked the commission's support in seeking funds for the University Child Care Project.

"We need money in order to meet licensing requirements, buy needed materials for the centers, and supplement staff salaries," she read from a prepared statement.

Mary Jo Ryan, who is affiliated with the Child Care Project, pointed out that the facility "was supposed to be a precedent-setting project."

"We've set a poor example," she said it is hoped the project will eventually offer more than child care — parental education and parenting classes, for example — but that the project itself is now "on shaky grounds."

Other students testifying at the meeting indicated a need for child care for night students and more centralized facilities.

Ms. Aitchison also urged commission members to contact state senators and recommend amending LB972, now before the Nebraska Unicameral, to "provide quality child care services for all low- and middle-income families requesting it." In its present form, the bill would provide statewide child care facilities for Aid to Dependent Children recipients only.

"This would be a great asset to women who work, study or teach in the University of Nebraska community," she said.

The problems of women on campus "are more comprehensive than day care," one student pointed out.

Jean O'Hara, a 28-year-old mother of two children, represented the new breed of women returning to the academic environment. Advising is a problem for those women, she said.

Dr. Lois Schwab, a commission member, said the university currently is interested in "making the university accessible to women in your situation... We want to meet your needs" in child care, registration and other problems encountered by homemakers and older women returning to college for training or retraining.

"We're reaching people too late," commission members agreed when Ms. Aitchison expressed the need for a program to "give women the opportunity to explore career options."

Possible avenues to acquaint young women entering college with the board opportunities now open to them might include panel visitations to high schools, and using the currently-existing annual principal's conference to pass along pertinent information, commission members speculated.

The UNL placement office, funded by student fees, came under criticism for failure to acquaint prospective employers with the areas women are entering. "The placement office is great if you want to know how to write a resume, a letter of application," said a recent UNL graduate who is as yet jobless.

Ms. Aitchison, also spokesperson for the University Women's Action Group, said a "Women's Study Program" — as a separate department — should be established on the campus. "The present courses within departments are not extensive enough to serve the needs of students," she said.

However, Daniela Weinberg, associate professor of anthropology, pointed out the structural difficulties in establishing a new department, and asked the commission's assistance in establishing "more coordination, cooperation and communication" between persons teaching women's courses in the various departments.

Elaine Cave, a university staff person said that since the merit system has been dissolved for state employees, people have been placed in step groups for promotions and pay increases. There are no rewards, no means of protecting secured positions, she said.

Jayne Anderson, chairperson of the commission, said that reports and findings resulting from the hearing, held in conjunction with the university's Women's Week, would be forwarded to Chancellor James H. Zumberge.

GRACIA SIEB

Beginning Friday, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln drama department will present "Dark of the Moon," written by Howard Richardson and William Berney, at the Howell Theater.

Directed by Hal Floyd, the play is a dramatization of the legendary "Ballad of Barbara Allen" and concerns the tragic tale of a young male witch who falls in love with and marries a mortal woman, Barbara Allen.

Fact and fiction, realism and fantasy, humor and pathos are all combined in the play, which has as its setting the remote Smoky Mountain area.

Included among the cast members are David Bell as John, the witch boy; Terry Baughan as Barbara Allen; and Donovan Diez and D. Chetley Kraft as "Conjur" man and woman, respectively.

The production also will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday, and Monday through Saturday, March 4-9.

In addition, co-author Richardson will attend the opening night performance of "Dark of the Moon" and will meet Monday with several drama classes in the Temple Building.

Currently, Richardson, who has served as a professor at Queens College in New York City and the Universities of Oregon, California and North Dakota, is concluding negotiations for the screen rights to "Dark of the Moon" with Al Ruddy, producer of "The Godfather."

Concerts At UNL

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Music's symphony orchestra will present a public concert Sunday, March 3, in Kimball Recital Hall.

The 8 p.m. program will include selections written by Haydn, Bloch and Tchaikovsky, and featured soloists will include Sally Matzke, violin; Jay Finlayson of Omaha, cello; Debby Shidler of Omaha, oboe; Mary Kelley, bassoon; and Margaret Emmons of Hastings, piano.

Three numbers written especially for a brass ensemble will be presented during the UNL Nebraska Brass Quintet's concert scheduled to take place at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Kimball Recital Hall.

Quintet members include Dennis Schneider, trumpet; Vernon Forbes, tenor trombone; David Kappy, horn; David Grasmick, trumpet; and William Buntain, bass trombone.

Open House, Art Sale

The works of a group of Lincoln artists will be shown during an open house to be held at The Home Gallery, 2528 C St., Sunday from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

A variety of pottery, paintings, etchings, jewelry, weaving and quilt collages will be available for purchase.

Sheldon Film Theater

The fifth film in the "Pioneers of Modern Painting" series will be shown March 3 and 5 in the Sheldon Film Theater.

Scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. each day, the film concerns the life and work of French painter, Henri Rousseau.

"Red Psalm," a film which won its director, Miklos Jancso, the Best Director Prize at the 1972 Cannes Film Festival, will be shown Saturday afternoon and evening in conjunction with the Feature Classics Series.

Set in Hungary in the 1890's, the allegorical film explores the theme of revolution.

Auditions Planned
Tryouts for the next Lincoln Community Playhouse Children's Theatre show will be held March 4 at 7 p.m., and March 5 at 5:30 p.m., at the Playhouse, 2500 So. 56th St.

According to the play's director, Miss Evelyn Weymouth, the play "is a NON-Shakespeare version of 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' owing scant allegiance to the Shakespeare play that gives rise to it. It achieves a comedy style all its own."

Parts will be cast for one girl and nine boys, ranging in age from 13 years through high school.

Concert Cancelled

A concert, which was to have been Friday by modern dancer Dena Modole, has been cancelled.

Noted mimist, Mick Sgroi, will perform at Kimball Recital Hall, April 20, in place of Ms. Modole, according to the sponsoring Nebraska Union Performing Fine Arts Committee.

Curtain Call

The Nebraska Wesleyan University production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" will be presented at 8 p.m. March 2, and at 2 p.m. March 3, in the Enid Miller Theatre.

The final three performances of the Omaha Playhouse's production of "Irma La Douce" will take place this weekend.

The curtain will rise at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, at the Playhouse, 6915 Cass.

Photography in Printmaking, an exhibit prepared by the Pratt Graphics Center, will continue on display at the Hastings College Gallery of Art through March 3.

The Lincoln Artists' Guild's current show — featuring works by Joy DeKlotz, Ilene Duemey, Gladys Lester and Lou Shaneyfelt — will end March 5.

The exhibit may be seen at Cengas, 1201 N St.

"Ways With Clay," an exhibit of ceramics done by Betty Wallace, will be on display at Elder Art Gallery on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus through March 8.

Rossini's "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" will be broadcast at 1 p.m. Saturday by the UNL radio station, KRNU-FM (90.3).

The broadcast is part of the 34th Texaco-Metropolitan Opera season series.

Readers' Reactions Differ

DEAR ABBY: Although you are well paid for giving advice to others, I feel many times your advice is immature and meaningless. A woman writes that she lost her cherished letters and photo albums in a flood, and she asked your advice on how to get over it.

Your reply was asinine! You compared her loss to the death of your own parents. Has it ever occurred to you that she, too, might have lost her mother and father, or others dear to her, but their memories had been kept alive by those precious photographs?

Sometimes I think you are absolutely without heart or feeling.

DISGUSTED IN ARCADIA

DEAR DISGUSTED: I know that I am not "absolutely without heart" because mine ached a little when I read your letter. But another reader expressed quite a different reaction to the same letter. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: How wise and timely (to me) was your reply to the lady who had lost her precious collection of pictures and letters she had saved over the years.

Several years ago, in moving, I lost many irreplaceable possessions just as that lady did, and I, too, was heartsick for a long while.

In January of 1973, my beloved daughter and adored grandsons (aged 4 and 9) were murdered in a senseless tragedy of mass murders here in Santa Cruz, Cal.

Now I know what heartbreak truly is. There is not a day or night that I do not sense my gentle ones' arms around me. I know that life will never be the same for me without them, but I keep trying to have faith.

I am blessed that my little mother, tho fragile and not well, is still alive.

Please, Dear Abby, continue to remind your readers that nothing material can be compared with our loved ones. Absolutely nothing! You may sign my name if you wish.

dear
abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 54-year-old widow. I lost my husband three years ago and live alone in a large, lovely home. My only child is married and she lives out of state.

I have been dating a widower (age 58) for about a year. He wants to marry me, but I am in no big hurry. Meanwhile, my daughter suggested that it is not "safe" for me to live alone, so I should contact the local college for a male student to share my home. He would have a bedroom to sleep and study in. No boarding or wandering around-the-home type of arrangement. No money involved. I'd give him the room in return for his giving me a feeling of security.

I told my gentleman friend about it, and he said, "No, No, No! A college student is a man... and I don't want another 'man' living there!" Then he suggested I run an ad for an older woman to live with me.

Abby, I don't think an older woman would offer any protection at all. Furthermore, I am insulted at the suggestion that anything could go on between me and a college youth.

If my friend doesn't have any more confidence in me than that I will never marry him. Or do you think I am wrong?

IOWA CITY READER

DEAR READER: I think your friend is very narrow-minded. You are wise not to rush into marriage with him. I agree. A college man would offer more protection than an older woman.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary and I love my job. My boss is the original "Mr. Wonderful" — considerate, generous and easy-going. My hours are ideal, and the pay is excellent. Of course there is one problem, or I wouldn't be writing to Dear Abby.

I am asked to pick up the cleaning woman and/or the baby sitter. I frequently am asked to drop my work and go to school to pick up the children. I also have been asked to do "a little marketing," or to return the boss' wife's girdle which she purchased on a sale several months ago. Well, I think you get the picture.

I hate to complain to my boss because I really love this job, but I was hired to do secretarial work, not the above mentioned errands. So, Dear Abby, how would you handle this problem?

JILL OF ALL TRADES

DEAR JILL: Candidly, openly and with no pussyfooting. Tell "Mr. Wonderful" exactly what you have told me. How else can he know that's on your mind?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Foundation To Provide Rec Funds For Inmates

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Foundation board of directors Thursday approved a grant to fund recreation activities at the Nebraska Penal Complex, but turned down a request for matching funds for the federally financed RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program).

The $5,000 one-year grant to the Nebraska Penal Complex will purchase recreation equipment, fund travel projects and provide $100 in expense money for each of 17 clubs.

In approving the request, the foundation board said it was disturbed by the word that the state provides no funding for recreational programs for inmates.

It urged the state's correctional officials to seek such funding and said they would have the full support of the foundation in that effort.

"It's inconceivable to me" that no state funds are provided for such purposes, said Harry Seward, foundation president.

Actually Case

But Foundation Executive Director John Frey said his check with the governor's office and a state legislator indicated that was the case.

The request for the $2,469 grant to RSVP was denied by the foundation on the grounds that the program, although perhaps worthwhile, duplicated other community efforts.

Several board members said the Volunteer Bureau, a part of the Lincoln Community Services organization, should be handling all volunteer activities in the community.

The federally funded program seeks specifically to involve older citizens in volunteer work. Executive Director Pauline Anderson told the board that the number of volunteers associated with the effort had grown from two in October to 57 in February.

RSVP board president J. Alan Hansen said the project would aim to see if such a program was workable. "If it is a good thing, I would have no hesitancy at all in relinquishing" responsible to another organization, he said.

On a similar matter, Frey told the board he has recommended a merger of the Open Door Health Center and the Malone Community Center before foundation funds are sought to finance the Open Door Center's health information and referral service for the poor.

Merger Suggested

The Lincoln Community Services planning division has served one-year foundation funding and consideration of merger with Malone or some other established agency.

But Frey indicated the foundation would set merger with Malone as a prerequisite to a funding consideration.

In other matters, the board was told that the foundation had received a $100,000 anonymous gift from a private family foundation.

Three-fourths of the total is to be invested while the other fourth is to be used for gifts and grants by the foundation. Income from the larger amount will be used for gifts and grants.

Frey also announced executive committee approval by mail of a grant of $3,150 to subsidize the young people's afternoon at the Joffrey Ballet.

And John Wells announced that the Pinewood Bowl Foundation had turned over its assets of $12,000 to the Lincoln Foundation for use for Pinewood Bowl improvements.

University of Nebraska Regent Robert Raun of Minden Thursday announced he had decided to seek a second elected term to the board.

Raun, first elected to the board in 1968, was appointed a regent in 1966 when Val Peterson resigned. The district he serves is the fifth of eight regents districts.

Raun said by telephone from his rural Minden farm that he would file for the post "within the next couple of days."

"It was difficult to come to a decision," he said. But he said a number of changes in which he's been interested have begun "to bear a little fruit."

"I feel obligated after nine years to stick with it," he said. "I'm going to try to stay in the buggy."

Youngsters Help Firemen Battle Burning Grass

The Lincoln Fire Department got some unsolicited help from youngsters Thursday afternoon in fighting a grass fire along the Burlington Northern railroad tracks near 56th St.

A fire department spokesman said Goodyear Tire and Rubber personnel also helped in fighting the blaze, which took about 45 minutes to extinguish.

The fire covered a strip about 400 feet long and about 20 to 30 feet wide. The blaze caused no damage, according to firemen. Its cause was not determined.

Resignation Accepted

Washington (AP) — President Nixon has accepted William B. Dale's resignation as U.S. executive director of the International Monetary Fund, the White House said.

Extortion Case Suspect Is Kept In Separate Jail

Omaha (AP) — One of three men arrested in an alleged extortion attempt was being kept in a jail separate from the one housing the other two, apparently to insure for his safety.

U.S. Atty. William K. Schaphorst confirmed that Ronald W. Dickey, 24, was separated from Jeffrey Scheinost, 19, of Omaha and John E. Wilson, 25, of Council Bluffs.

Dickey was at the Douglas County Jail Annex. The others were held at the Courthouse jail.

The three were arraigned in Omaha Thursday, charged with extortion. At the hearing, Dickey blurted out:

"I was at work when I was asked by these two guys to go pick up..."

U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck stopped Dickey before he could continue.

All three said they worked at an Omaha car cleaning firm.

Cox To Seek Carpenter Seat

Scottsbluff (AP) — Robert Cox, a local businessman, filed Thursday for the 48th District legislative seat now held by State Sen. Terry Carpenter.

Carpenter earlier announced he would seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Cox told reporters he sold his car dealership business prior to filing.

Cox becomes the first to announce for the seat being vacated by Carpenter.

Scheinost and Wilson were arrested later after police followed a car which had stopped near the bag earlier.

The arrests capped a day's hectic activity by lawmen from Omaha and Council Bluffs, including the tracking down of Bunten's relatives and a two-hour stakeout at an Interstate interchange.

Peck set March 8 as the date for a preliminary hearing and set the bond on Wilson at $15,000, Dickey $10,000, and Scheinost $15,000.

Omahan's Symbol Wins DEC Contest

A 25-year-old Omaha architect has submitted the winning entry in the State Department of Environmental Control's symbol contest.

Jim Hohenstein, a 1972 University of Nebraska graduate, was awarded a $100 savings bond Thursday by Gov. J. James Exon for his entry.

The symbol will be used on all department publications and stationery. Mrs. Sharon Wherry, the department's public information officer, said 750 entries were submitted by Nebraskans of all ages.

Honorable mentions in the contest went to Mrs. Wayne Stroup of Benkelman and to Margaret Berry, James Eske, Bruce McBride, Linda Ratcliffe and Paul Zanderholm, all of Lincoln.

Fertilizer Shortages To Be Eyed

A subcommittee of the Senate Agriculture Committee is planning a day-long survey of fertilizer shortages and its associated problems in Nebraska on March 8, according to a spokesman for Sen. Carl Curtis's office.

The probe into the fertilizer problem is to begin on the Robinson Seed Farm near Valley at 9 a.m. followed by an informal meeting with area farmers at the Bank of Valley community room at 10 a.m.

There will be a formal congressional hearing at the Aksarben coliseum in Omaha beginning at 1:30 p.m. with a yet to be selected list of invited witnesses presenting information on the problem.

Gov. J. James Exon is expected to cut short his participation in the National Governors Conference in Washington to be present at the hearing.

Officials from several state departments of agriculture are said to be planning a meeting in Omaha the day before the hearing to coordinate their testimony.

Other sources indicate that several representatives of farm organizations and fertilizer dealers will be invited to testify at the hearing.

The subcommittee will apparently consist only of Sens. Curtis and George McGovern of South Dakota with McGovern acting as chairman. Sen. Richard Clark of Iowa and Herman Talmage of Georgia are on the subcommittee but are not expected to attend the hearing.

Dodge County Deputies File, Lose Jobs

Fremont (AP) — Two Dodge County Sheriff's deputies who filed Thursday for their parties' nomination for sheriff, lost their jobs minutes after filing.

One deputy, Richard G. Wennstedt, was discharged by Sheriff Homer Brainard. The other deputy, Clifford M. Stack, resigned, after being told by Brainard that he had a choice of resigning or being discharged.

Sheriff Brainard refused to comment on questions about a letter he allegedly wrote to his subordinates, threatening discharge if they filed to oppose him in the elections.

Brainard would not say whether he wrote the letter, or not.

Dodge County Atty. Gordon Gobel said the letter, allegedly written by Brainard, appeared to be illegal.

Gobel said he planned to turn his findings over to the Dodge County Board of Supervisors, and that, in fact the letter was written by the sheriff, that Brainard could subject to misdemeanor charges.

However, Gobel said no one has requested that he file a complaint.

The correspondence in question was circulated during a recent meeting of the Dodge County Board, and although it did not carry Brainard's signature — it did carry Brainard's name in type written form.

Spitters Resigns

Santa Clara, Calif. (AP) — Memorex cofounder and President Laurence L. Spitters has resigned from the financially troubled computer-products company for personal reasons, the company said.

Wennstedt filed for the Republican nomination for sheriff, while Stack filed for the Democratic nomination.

Brainard is a Republican.

NU Med Center Vice Chancellor Quits

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The University of Nebraska Medical Center is losing its vice chancellor and director of health services administration to a Michigan hospital post.

Richard C. Schripsema will become administrator of Husley Hospital in Flint, Mich., May 1, according to Medical Center Chancellor Robert D. Sparks.

Schripsema is the second administrator to resign at the Medical Center since September to take a position in Michigan.

Ralph Cerny, associate administrator, left in September to become administrator of Mason County Memorial Hospital in Ludington, Mich.

Asked why the administrators left, Sparks said: "They both received attractive offers from private hospitals where the salaries are significantly higher than here."

A Michigan newspaper reported Schripsema would receive $45,000 a year in Flint; he was paid about $35,000 a year here.

Schripsema, 38, joined the center as an assistant administrator in 1963 and was named administrator in 1966. During that time much of the center's growth took place.

HAPPY TUDOR WINS INAUGURAL

. . . Ladd-Schuyler Horse Upsets Queen's Turn

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Grand Island — Mrs. Don Ladd and Mrs. Ray Schuyler didn't have to wait very long to have a horse they co-owned win a race.

Their Happy Tudor, who is trained by Don Ladd, won in their first effort as horse owners and both women beamed with delight when discussing their winner.

"That's the first horse we've ever owned together . . . that's the first one we've ever had," said Mrs. Ladd. "Sure, that's got to be the biggest win we've had."

Happy Tudor's victory was yet another win for the outsiders as Fonner Park opened its 21st season with only three of nine favorites prevailing on the opening day of horse racing in Nebraska.

And it was yet another disappointment for owner Paul Kemling's Queen's Turn, last year's Fonner Juvenile champion, who was beaten seven lengths — the sixth straight race she has failed to win.

There was little doubt that the victory was pleasing to the new horse owners, whose charger won by a convincing five lengths.

"I get all the checks," said Mrs. Ladd when asked if her husband would share in the earnings of $1,500 for the triumph. "I just deposit them and spend them."

In scoring his third lifetime win in five starts, Happy Tudor covered the 4 furlongs in :46 2-5 — just three-fifths of a second off the track record of :45 4-5.

The time, accomplished over a fast track, undoubtedly indicated that Happy Tudor is in excellent condition for this early in the season.

He returned $12.20, $4.60 and $3.60 for winning while Tom Chaffee's Miss Aggieville, who finished one-half length in front of June Caldwell's Kiowa Bay, placed for $6.80 and $4.80. Kiowa Bay showed for $7.40.

Walter Orona, who steered Happy Tudor in his first Nebraska race after four starts last year at Centennial Park near Denver, said he was worried when he took the lead down the backstretch.

"I didn't think when he took the lead that he'd hang on," Orona said. "He ran a pretty good race. I thought Queen's Turn was the one to beat because of her record last year.

"Don told me to send him to the front right at the start and that's what I did," he added.

It was ironic that Happy Tudor, coupled in the wagering with O. E. Chaffee's Land of Lakes, was a late entry. He received his opportunity to compete in the eventual nine-horse field when Dale Wolff's Miss Jackie Robin was an early Thursday morning scratch.

Last year's leading Fonner jockey, Ken Jones, started out impressively, winning both ends of the $20.00 daily double. He won with Poduncin ($4.40) in the first and then scored with Budman (5.40) the second.

Two other jockeys tallied double wins.

Eddie Werre won with Love's Request ($29.20) in the fourth and Renegotiate ($9.60) in the fifth while David Pettinger scored with Kingsamarchen ($23.40) in the sixth and Jim Savage ($5.00) in the ninth.

Last year's leading Fonner trainer, Don Von Hemel, scored double wins with Kingsamarchen and Jim Savage.

Although the attendance was behind last year's 5,846, the mutual handle of $383,558 established an all-time opening-day record, breaking last season's previous best of $382,702. Last season, Fonner opened on a Friday which may have contributed to the slight attendance decline.

Wilber, Tri-County Defy Gambling Odds

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Milford — If you had been a betting man at Milford Technical College here Thursday night, you probably would have limped home with empty pockets.

Why? Because the state's second and fourth-ranked Class C basketball teams were gigantic upset victims in the semifinals of the C-9 District Tournament before an officially paid 1,624 fans, who made twice as much noise.

Seven-time loser Wilber first defied gambling odds, registering a 66-63 upset of fourth-ranked Sutton in the opener.

That set the tempo for hustling Tri-County to record an even bigger upset, 62-60, over second-ranked Geneva in the nightcap.

Mike Niemeyer supplied Wilber's clutch points, hitting four pressure-packed free throws in the final 28 seconds after two of Wilber's top-three scorers — Russ Andersen, and Dirk Altman — had fouled out.

Larry Pieper produced Tri-County's critical plays. The 6-2 senior left-hander hit a 12-foot jump shot with :2.29 seconds remaining to give Tri-County a 61-60 lead. He then grabbed the most important of his 14 rebounds after Geneva's last shot misfired with seven seconds remaining.

Guard Everett Burger shared Tri-County's heroics with Pieper. Burger hit nine field goals, most of which came on hustling drives resulting in layups.

"Once he (Burger) hits a few, he gets more offense offensive-mined," Tri-County coach Jim Edwards observed after his club avenged a 55-51 loss to Geneva a month ago.

"There have been games where he wouldn't even look at the basket," Edwards said of Burger. "We felt the only way to beat Geneva was to press and beat them downcourt."

"When Burger hit a few, Geneva had to go out and get him and that opened up their zone inside," Edwards noted. "We hadn't been getting scoring from our guards. Now we're back to the balance we've always prided ourselves on."

Tri-County's upset overshadowed an excellent individual performance by Geneva's 6-6 Evan Schnegelerberger, who finished with a game-high 30 points, including 15 in the first quarter.

Tri-County was in its delay game for almost three and a half minutes of the fourth quarter, trying to protect a 59-58 lead. But Geneva's Steve Rust stole the ball and hit a lay-in with 1:04 left to give the Wildcats a 60-59 edge.

and said he had an added incentive to play well, got a share of the lead with his eagle three on the 15th hole, but bogeyed the next when he missed the green and fell one stroke back.

Palmer pulled his drive into the woods on the 562-yard first hole, and hit the limb of a tree trying to get out. He hit a tree with his third shot, the ball bouncing right back at him and dribbling into a ditch.

"I tried to swat it out and buried it in the side of the ditch," he said.

Then he took a drop, pitched it on the green in six and two-putted.

"I thought I'd ruined everything right there," he said.

But he dropped a 25-foot birdie putt on the third hole, hit an iron six feet from the flag on the fifth and birdied the sixth from 12 feet. Two big wood shots left him a seven foot putt for eagle three on the 10th, he birdied the 11th from 12 feet, then made it second eagle of the day on the 15th, holing from 25 feet.

"This is the best over-all game we've played all year," Wilber Dave Oman said. "I think Sutton thought we'd slow it down like we did when we upset Sandy Creek two weeks ago. But we attacked them with a fast-break and it worked."

Tri-County, which owns a 12 point and three point wins over Wilber this season, will try to make it three straight Friday night in the C-10 championship game at 8:00 p.m.

Hole-in-One Aids Ewing To Lead

Orlando, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer recovered from a triple-bogey eight on the first hole, but his four under par 68 fell one stroke short of catching the group of three who tied for the first round lead Thursday in the $150,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Jack Ewing, a non-winner in six years on the tour, had one of the day's three holes in one and was tied for the top at 67 with former Citrus champion Jerry Heard and Richard Crawford.

Palmer, who hasn't won in more than a year, was tied with Andy North, Jim Colbert and Leonard Thompson, winner of the Jackie Gleason tournament last Sunday.

Australian Bruce Crampton was in another group at 69, two strokes off the pace and three under par on the 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course.

Lee Trevino, the pre-tourney favorite, had a 71 in the mild, cloudy weather and was tied with defending champion Buddy Allin.

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller are not competing in this event that offers a $30,000 first prize.

"I was upset—to say the last," Palmer said of the big, fat eight that led his card. "I decided I was either gonna play—or get up and get out."

He responded to the adversity by playing one string of 13 holes eight under par, including two eagles and a total of eight "threes" in that string.

Fremont Will Challenge NP

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

North Platte basketball coach Byron Loescher can conjure up at least three incentive factors for his team's Friday night challenge at Fremont in the Big 10 Conference playoff.

The most important of the three is to prove the Bulldogs can win in Eastern Nebraska.

"We've had a tendency this year to choke up when we travel east. We've got to quit that," says Loescher, whose tenth-ranked team has lost to Lincoln Northeast, Lincoln High and Hastings on the road in a 11-5 season.

"That Lincoln trip a couple of weeks ago (losses to Northeast and Lincoln High) took a little ego out of us," offers Loescher.

"We got caught with our britches down in the third quarter against Northeast and just didn't play well enough against Lincoln High."

"In some respects, maybe that weekend helped us," adds Loescher. "We seem to be molding back together again in terms of concentration, commitment and composure.

"Anyone can function when everything's going good," according to Loescher. "But when you get flattened out for a few days and see some adversity, then you find out what you really have."

Breaking the Eastern Nebraska jinx isn't the only thing North Platte has riding on the outcome of Friday's game against the fifth-ranked Tigers.

"Our seniors have won 20 of 24 Big 10 games, including our double overtime win at Fremont in the playoff two years ago," points out Loescher.

"When I first came here four years ago, the Big 10 was the place we thought we should start. We've finished 7-2, 7-1 and 7-1 the last three years," he acknowledges.

"Four of our seniors (Dan Curtis, Steve Gullion, Bret Brase and Steve Smith) have played on all three of those teams and two (Curtis and Gullion) played in that win at Fremont two years ago," notes Loescher.

Another incentive factor for North Platte is a Big 10 Conference double, having won the league football championship last fall. "We want to double here and extend it to track this spring," says Loescher.

"I haven't seen Fremont play this year," admits Loescher, "but Al Bahe's always tough. You can count on him having good defense and quickness."

"Two years ago, we were sitting 7-8 going into the playoff up there," recalls Loescher. "Bahe had a grin on his face from here to the Mississippi when we arrived. We can't sneak up on them this year. We're pretty well marked now. We have a reputation — whether it's deserved or not."

Loescher is convinced North Platte is primed and ready for the stretch drive, which includes the Big 10 playoff, district and hopefully, state.

"We were humming so well early in the season and beating people by 25 to 30 that we got to patting ourselves on the back," analyzes Loescher. "Then when we got it stuck to us, we kind of whimpered instead of showing the character to bounce back."

"It's hard to measure how much help or hurt we experienced after that Lincoln trip," admits Loescher. "But our kids know we can compete with the teams that beat us. They know they're among the best. We've just got to pick ourselves up and prove it."

Friday night's feature Lincoln game is Plus X against Lincoln High in the Thunderbolts' only intra-city game of the season at Pershing Auditorium.

If the Bolts can defeat their Class A counterparts, it will give them a clean sweep over their city opponents in both football and basketball.

Lincoln East has its sights set on finishing unbeaten in the Trans-Nebraska Conference. The Spartans host Hastings Friday night, then travel to Grand Island Saturday night to complete their regular season.

A loss in either Trans-Nebraska game would produce an East tie with Lincoln Northeast for the league title. An unlikely double loss weekend would give the Rockets a repeat championship.

While Lincoln High-Plus X and East-Hastings square off in the Capital City Friday night, Southeast travels to Papillion and Northeast invades Ralston for non-conference contests.

The East-Grand Island matchup is the only Saturday game, involving a Lincoln team. Southeast will play Northeast and East will battle Lincoln High in the first round of district tournament competition next week. Plus X opens its bid for a repeat state tournament trip Tuesday night against Ashland at Nebraska City.

Pairings were to be announced later in the day, the NCAA said.

Creighton, ranked 16th in the UPI coaches ratings of major teams, finished its regular season at 21-5 last weekend with a split of a two-game series at Hawaii.

The Bluejays last played in the prestigious NCAA tourney in the 1963-64 season, the senior year for Paul Silas, now with the Boston Celtics.

"We were assigned to the Midwest Region and will play Saturday afternoon, March 9, in Denton, Tex.," Sutton said. The opponent was to be named later.

Sutton delayed the announcement to the morning gathering for an hour, to conform with NCAA wishes. The announcement brought a round of spirited applause.

Creighton will join the Southwest Conference Champion and two other at-large teams in the tourney at Denton. The winners of those two games will join the Big Eight Conference champion and the Missouri Valley champion in the Midwest Regional at Tulsa, Okla., March 14-15.

"This is a tremendous thrill for the team, the coaching staff and the entire school," Sutton said. "I don't believe we could have attained this without first our students, our great fans, and I'll throw a lot of the honors to our senior class."

Dayton, with a 17-7 record, will meet the Pacific Coast Athletic Association champion and the winners of the Big Sky Conference and the Western Athletic Conference will collide in the West Regional at Idaho State March 9.

Dayton has played in six previous tournaments and lost to UCLA 79-64 in the championship game in 1967.

Notre Dame and Marquette will compete in the Midwest Regional at Indiana State, Pittsburgh, Providence and South Carolina in the East Regional, the site of which was to be determined later in the day, and Creighton, Oral Roberts and Syracuse in the Midwest Regional at North Texas State.

Notre Dame, 23-1, will be making its 11th NCAA championship bid. The Irish staged a major surprise this season when they upset then top-ranked UCLA 71-70 Jan. 19 in South Bend, Ind., ending the Bruins' 88-game winning streak.

UCLA, which must win the Pacific-8 title to gain an NCAA berth, has won the last seven national championships and nine of the last 10. The Bruins currently are ranked third.

Henderson-Raymond Gain District Finals

Seward — The No. 1 and No. 2 seeded clubs will be facing off in the finals of Class C's District 9 basketball tournament here Saturday night following easy wins Thursday.

Both No. 1 seed Henderson and No. 2 Raymond Central rolled through the semi-finals with top-seeded wins over Osceola and Stombsburg.

Raymond Central, now 13-3 on the year, thumped a cold shooting Stombsburg, 80-65, in the night's opener. Third-rated Henderson romped past Osceola, 74-52, in the night cap.

After battling for a 20-19 first-quarter lead, Raymond Central outscored Stombsburg 25-8 in the second quarter to put the game out of sight, 45-27, at halftime. Stombsburg, hitting only 33 per cent from the field for the game, found itself too far down to make a serious second-half challenge. A 13-point deficit was the closest the losers came with just 14 seconds left to play.

Raymond Central's Jerry Otto led all scorers with 24 points. Teammate Dave Christensen added 17, Brian Ubbens 15, and Craig Schnieder 12 for Central. Bill Perminter topped Stombsburg 20 points, Ken Schutt had 13, Jay Peterson 12, and Bruce Baker 10.

Henderson, now 16-3 wasted no time in making its presence known to Osceola. The Huskies took a 22-10 first quarter lead and maintained at least a 10-point cushion throughout the game.

Henderson held quarter leads of 22-10, 36-22, 55-39 and the final 74-52.

Henderson hit on 11 of 15 field goal attempts, a 73 per cent clip, in the first quarter, and an 8 of 12 effort for 67 per cent in the third quarter. The winners ended with a 58 per cent field goal night.

Meanwhile, Osceola struggled along with a 39 per cent effort. Henderson kept the Bulldogs off the boards on both ends of the court, forcing Osceola to shoot from the outside.

Stan Friesen and sophomore Chuck Siebert headed Henderson's scoring with 22 and 21 points, respectively. Friesen connected on 10 of 13 field goal tries. Kerry Dick added 18 more for the Huskies.

Steve Carlson led Osceola, now 11-8, with 17 points. Jeff Johnston was the only other Bulldog in double figures with 10.

Raymond Central and Henderson will face off in the C-9 District championship Saturday night in the Seward High School gym. Game time is set for 8 p.m.

Shickley, Nelson Reach D-8 Finals

By Dean Terrill

Superior — Going perfectly according to form, it will be topped Shickley against second ranked Nelson here Saturday night for the D-8 district championship.

Shickley eased past Chester Hubbell in Thursday night's semi-final 58-42. But Nelson found a bigger handful in Davenport than that 67-56 score would indicate.

The lead changed hands 15 times the first half before Nelson gradually moved from 23-all to a five point intermission spread. Coach Wayne Gumaer's club held from that point but couldn't pull away.

Stalwart senior Duane Meyer notched 13 of his team leading 24 points in the second half to provide stability. Scoring was well divided otherwise.

Six field goals by Davenport's Rod Tegtmeyer in the finale was the biggest in keeping things close. He ended with 20 points, just over the 18 of eammate Doug Voigt.

Shickley's Longhorns stomped to an easy 17-8 first quarter over Chester Hubbell, then padded the bulge in the other three frames. The winners showed good balance but got their output, 17 points, from 5-10 junior Stan Dowdy.

More ball savvy by the Longhorns, plus better board work made the big difference. Chester Hubbell was paced by Jim Holmes' 14.

Nelson — Meyer 24, Billott 11, Claiborn 9, Gebers 9, Doherty 6, Peterson 6, Sekora 2, Davenport — Tegtmeyer 20, Voigt 18, White 8, Ficken 4, Albers 3, Lowery 3, Shickley — Dowdy 17, 14, 10, 17-58, Chester Hubbell — 8, 12, 17, 15-42, Shickley — Dowdy 17, Anderson 10, Dondlinger 10, Reinsch 8, Licht 6, Schweitzer 5, Kamler 2, Chester Hubbell — Jim Holmes 14, John Holmes 6, Gausman 6, Raatz 6, Schlier 3, Dake 2, Tietjen 2, Mumm 2, Long 1.

Oakland Players Get Historic Pay Raises

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The Oakland A's, in the money league, are second-class world champions of baseball no more.

Pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter made history when he received the first $100,000 contract awarded by A's Owner Charles O. Finley. Third baseman Sal Bando got $100,000 and right fielder Reggie Jackson $135,000 by winning over Finley at the arbitration table.

"I don't care what other pitchers in baseball are making. I just worry about how much I make," Hunter said after the team opened spring training camp here.

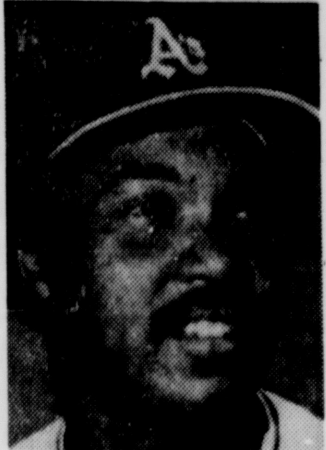

But the five players who won their cases in arbitration, taking an $85,000 bite out of Finley's millions, apparently all made points by comparing their salary requests with the pay of rival players.

"We've been underpaid too long," was the rallying cry, sounded by Jackson, of those who went to arbitration.

Jackson's business partner, Gary Walker, represented him in the arbitration hearings in San Francisco and brought in a chart showing the size of raises awarded other recent American League Most Valuable Player Award winners.

Chicago's Richie Allen, for instance, went from $100,000 to $225,000 after winning the award. Jackson, the 1973 winner, asked for a comparatively modest boost from $75,000.

"We had access to figures on all other players' salaries. Some of them were really surprising," said Darold Knowles, who went to arbitration although he and Finley were only $4,000 apart.

Reggie Jackson

Knowles discovered he was the sixth highest paid relief pitcher in the majors and was convinced he should be paid as much as at least two he trailed. Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh and Clay Carroll of Cincinnati.

"With arbitration, I don't think you'll see top players on one team being paid proportionately lower than players on other teams any more," Knowles said.

He edged over $60,000 in salary with his victory. Jackson will receive $35,000 more than Finley wanted to pay, Bando $25,000, Ken Holtzman $13,000 and Rolfe Fingers $9,000.

Finley argued during the hearings, according to one player involved: "The A's don't have any superstars, just a lot of young players approaching stardom."

But the team that shoots for a third straight world championship has at least nine players making $60,000 and up. The total payroll for the 25 players on the opening-day roster will probably be over $1.25 million.

"We're going to have to prove that we're worth that much," Bando admits.

Young Cagers' Contest Slated

Who are Lincoln's basketball stars of tomorrow?

That question could well be answered Saturday during the first annual Tri-Star Basketball Contest, sponsored by the Optimist Club of Lincoln.

The Tri-Star contest tests the individuals skills in passing, goal shooting and dribbling. Each youngster will be judged for accuracy on three direct passes, three bounce passes and three shots from two positions. Dribbling ability is determined by speed and distance on a marked triangular course.

Competition is open to all Lincoln area boys and girls from age 8 through 13.

The contest will be run from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday in the gymnasium of the First Christian Church at 16th and "K". Gold, silver and bronze trophies will be awarded in each category. Trophy presentations will be made at Pershing Auditorium just prior to the first game of the district tournament.

Kennedy Denies Blazer Protest

New York (UPI) — Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, Thursday denied a protest lodged by the Portland Trail Blazers after their game with the New York Knicks on Feb. 19.

The protest was filed by Harry Glickman, general manager of the Trail Blazers, because of a disputed call made by referee Bob Rakek with only six seconds left in regulation time of a game the Knicks went on to win 119-116 in overtime.

In that game Rakek, thinking time had expired on the 24-second clock, blew his whistle to stop play while the Knicks' Earl Monroe was in the process of shooting a basket. Monroe made the shot, tying the score and sending the game into overtime. The Trail Blazers overcame that Rakek's whistle should have halted play, but Rakek, though admitting he blew the cal, said that in his opinion Monroe had already released the ball before the whistle was blown.

SIU Gymnast Falls and Dies

St. Louis (AP) — Gary Morava, one of the nation's leading collegiate gymnasts, died at a St. Louis hospital Thursday following an accident in which he broke two vertebrae in his neck during warmup exercises.

Morava, 21, a senior at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, died less than 48 hours after the incident occurred on the SIU campus.

He was injured while practicing to compete with a U.S. team next month in the Soviet Union.

Huskers Eye Big 8 Wrestling Tourney

Nebraska wrestling coach Orval Borgiali is uncertain about where the Huskers will finish in the 41st Annual Big Eight Conference Wrestling Championships, Friday and Saturday in Norman, Oklahoma.

"There's a possibility we can finish in the first division or wind up on the bottom," Borgiali said. "If we can wrestle at full capacity, there's a chance we can finish second. This isn't wishful thinking, but a possibility."

"However, realizing the inconsistency of our team throughout the year, finishing last scares me to death," he said. "It has happened to me twice and it's the most degrading feeling I've ever had. And the bad thing is that the feeling lasts for one year until the next Big Eight tournament." Nebraska finished fourth in last year's Big 8 wrestling championships.

To qualify for the NCAA tournament, at Ames, Iowa, March 14-16, a wrestler must finish at least fourth in his respective weight class and Borgiali said that nine of 10 wrestlers on the Husker squad have a chance to qualify for the nationals.

"Tony Jennings (142 pounds), Gary Harnisch (126 pounds), Bob Johnson (190 pounds) and Bruce Conger (heavyweight) probably have the best chances of anybody," he said. "But our entire team is prepared, both physically and mentally."

Borgiali said that Oklahoma State, Iowa State and Oklahoma are favorites going into the Big Eight tournament. "Oklahoma State has too much overall balance, so they're the leading contender," he said. "But Iowa State doesn't get too excited about the Big Eight; they just worry about qualifying and then point to the nationals."

Eagles Sign Kansas Pair

Philadelphia (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles Wednesday announced the signing of Mitch Sutton, their top draft choice from Kansas and Willie Cullars, a seventh round pick from Kansas State.

Sutton, a 6-foot-4, 252-pound defensive tackle, was selected on the third round. The Eagles had traded their draft rights on the first two rounds.

A native of Stone Mountain, Ga., he was named to the All-Big Eight Conference second team last season.

Cullars, a 6-5, 250-pound defensive end, was a starter for two seasons after transferring from Pratt (Ka.) Junior College.

The Eagles already signed 10th round draft choice Phil Polak, a running back from Bowling Green and Sid Bond, an offensive tackle from Texas Christian picked on the 15th round.

Court: Officer Who Fell Through Ceiling Can't Collect Damages

By The Associated Press

A policeman who fell through an Omaha school building ceiling while investigating a burglary report is not entitled to collect damages from the Omaha School District, the state Supreme Court held Thursday.

The opinion reversed the Douglas County District Court, which had awarded policeman Willie Nared judgment against the school district for negligence.

Responding to a burglary alarm, Nared and another officer went to the Kellom school in Omaha Aug. 10, 1971 and captured one juvenile intruder. While searching an attic area, Nared fell through a false ceiling to the floor 10 feet below.

The Supreme Court said there was no evidence that the school district knew of the hidden danger represented by the attic area, which was not open to the public, or that the school district had any opportunity to warn Nared of it.

In other opinions Thursday, the Supreme Court:

—Affirmed the judgment of the York County District Court that Karla Kinkner was a neglected child who should be committed to the care and custody of the state Welfare Department. The appeal was brought by the mother, Marjane Kinkner, and Edna Schaeffer, maternal grandmother.

—Upheld the Dakota County District Court in determining that title to a road on accretion land along the Missouri River at Dakota City belonged to the city rather than two owners of the remainder of the accretion land, Willis D. and Alma M. Dunnick.

—Reversed the Lancaster County District Court and said that a child support judgment against Ronald J. Amen never became a lien against certain of Amen's real estate, subsequently acquired by Action Realty Co. The district court had quieted title in Action Realty, subject to the judgment lien for child support.

—Affirmed the Madison County District Court conviction of Raymond Wingate for assaulting and resisting, with a dangerous weapon, a law enforcement officer. The charge stemmed from a 1972 incident when the sheriff and two deputies went to Wingate's farm to serve a distress warrant for delinquent personal property taxes.

—Upheld the York County District Court in setting aside a deed conveyance from Lois M. Westerdale to Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Johnson. The action was brought by Irma L. Herford, sister of Mrs. Westerdale, who alleged Mrs. Westerdale was incompetent at the time of the transaction.

—Upheld the Saline County District Court in finding one part of the will of Clara Gloe to be invalid because of undue influence, but finding the remainder of the will to be valid. Nieces and nephews had contested the will.

—Upheld the Buffalo County District Court in an award of workmen's compensation to John J. Sopher for injuries received while employed by the Nebraska Public Power District as a lineman.

—Upheld the Platte County District

Court in refusing to decree dissolution of Community Housing, Inc., as asked by minority stockholders.

—Affirmed the Saline County District Court in holding that Howard E. and Shirley J. Ach could not recover on a homeowner's insurance policy with Farmers Mutual Insurance Co. of Nebraska for loss by theft of a diamond ring. The courts held notice had not been given to the insurance company within the time allowed.

Proud To Reveal Plans At Saturday Conference

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha will hold a news conference at 9:45 a.m. Saturday in the Omaha Press Club to announce his future political plans and tell about his plans to meet with the president.

After hearing testimony from striking truckers, the Legislature voted to go to Washington to tell the President about the truckers' problems.

The President said that he did not want to meet with the entire Legislature, but would meet with Proud.

Proud holds one of the 24 legislative seats that are up for election this year. He has said that it is not likely that he will run again.

Mailman Seeks Seat In Unicam

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha mailman, Tom Fitzgerald, 53, Thursday announced he would seek the 14th District legislative seat.

Fitzgerald said he would seek legislation to benefit the elderly. The seat is now held by Sen. Duke Snyder, who has announced he will not seek reelection.

UNL Professors Honored

Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors have been honored by the board of directors of the American Concrete Institute (ACI).

Professor G. M. Smith, chairman of the department of engineering mechanics and Professor G. C. Ernst, of the civil engineering department, are among a charter list of 161 ACI members who have been elected "Fellows."

Thone Backers File His Papers

Supporters of Rep. Charles Thone, R-Nebr., filed his reelection papers with the secretary of state Thursday.

Thone was in Washington. Thone said that he would do no campaigning before the May 14 primary and would campaign only in the general election.

City Won't Appeal Centrum Decision

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

No appeal.
That was the decision reached by city officials Thursday on a district court decision thwarting plans to build the Centrum.

Instead, city lawmakers and the mayor rededicated the city's commitment to building the city services building under the guidelines outlined by the court.

The officials, on the advice of City Atty. Dick Wood, directed that the following steps be taken to keep the project going:

—begin appraisals on properties in the Centrum block at 12th and O to lay the groundwork for obtaining options on the land.

Repeal Ordinance

—repeal Monday the ordinance overturned by the court for going beyond state law because the ordinance authorized the selling of condominium interests in the private, retail portion of the Centrum.

—drafting of a new substitute ordinance to "keep faith with the court," as Wood phrased it.

—seek correction of the "technical defects" in two state statutes declared unconstitutional by the court because one law has a defect in its title and the second constituted "special" legislation.

Wood reported that the council already has approved a $17,000 contract with an appraiser to determine the values of the Centrum block property. That contract had not been executed, however.

He said it will take about 60 days to complete the appraisals, which then pave the way for negotiations to begin between the city and private land owners. Under the terms of the court ruling, the city can acquire only the land needed to construct the two public portions of the Centrum — the bus terminal and parking garage.

Property Needed

The city would obtain the central core of the block for those uses either through the voluntary sale of the land or through condemnation. The city also will need to obtain portions of land around the edge of the block for footings and support columns and acquire air rights.

Eventually the city can sell back any surplus land for private development. Such action is legal, Wood noted, as long as no city dollars are involved and as long as the city does not loan its credit to that private development.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said the court decision presented a unique opportunity for the city and business leaders to take a second look at the total redevelopment.

"I hate to see us narrow our interest too early and not look at the whole picture," she said.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis cautioned the lawmakers not to put all their eggs in one basket and to be prepared to take other steps to build the Centrum in case the required corrective legislation is axed at the Capitol.

She suggested that Wood look into procedures required to build the Centrum as a redevelopment project, as authorized under LB299 passed by the Legislature last year. Wood said he does not recommend going that route now due to the extended amount of time which would be needed to build the structure.

New Dispute Added To LES, NPPD Feud

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Add one more item to the list of Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD)-Lincoln Electric System (LES) disputes.

This time the controversy revolves around the transmission of power from Wyoming to Lincoln as LES continues plans to participate in construction of a mammoth coal-fired generating complex in Southeast

Wyoming. The project is being headed up by the Missouri Basin Systems Group (MBSG).

NPPD has elected not to participate in that complex, NPPD manager D. W. Hill said Thursday, since NPPD believes it can obtain cheaper power from the proposed Gentlemen II station.

However, Hill said, "We'd like to own, operate and maintain it (the line)."

Hill attempted to assure LES Board members that, "We're not trying to cut you off in the power generation business."

Just because NPPD has opted not to participate in the plant "does not mean it's not a good plan," Hill said in a meeting often threatening to erupt into a heated debate between NPPD and LES representatives over other longstanding disputes.

Hill reported that if for some reason the Wyoming plant does not begin operations in 1979 as planned, NPPD will attempt to move up the beginning operation date of the Gentlemen II station near Sutherland, NPPD would then sell short term power needs to LES until the Wyoming plant started producing electricity.

LES has stated its willingness to become a partner in the construction and operation of Gentlemen II. LES administrator Walt Canney reported that the 200-megawatts (mw) of power Lincoln is proposing to obtain from the Wyoming plant would provide only two-thirds of Lincoln's deficiency by 1979.

LES asked for the cancellation on the grounds that Lincoln no longer needs NPPD services provided under terms of the contract. LES officials maintain that nullification of the contract would save Lincoln $500,000 over the next four years.

And Wednesday the NPPD board rejected LES's request to cancel a management contract.

Committee's Budget Calls For 4 New NU Buildings

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Funding for four major new buildings at the University of Nebraska is included in the capital construction budget approved Thursday night by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

The committee's budget provides $1,095,000 in previously authorized funding for a $6.2 million life sciences complex on the downtown Lincoln campus, and $225,000 in new money added to the previously authorized $1,250,000 for an animal health research center on the East Campus.

No committee decision was made on the total project figure for the requested $8 million facility.

At the University of Nebraska at Omaha, a $1.5 million appropriation will begin to fund a requested $2.5 million central utilities project and $294,000 will allow development of plans for a proposed $6 million physical education and health facility.

The committee approved a $145,000 appropriation to plan construction of a new $2.6 million structure for the College of Pharmacy at the NU Medical Center in Omaha. NU had planned to remodel an existing building for $2.1 million.

NU would receive $125,000 and land acquisition at Lincoln and $280,000 for land acquisition at UNO.

A $650,000 appropriation would allow the Department of Public Institutions to begin development of veterans facilities at Scottsbluff.

The committee cut from $1,750,000 to $250,000 the fiscal analyst's original recommendation for funding for a Department of Corrections diagnostic and evaluation complex for adult offenders to be located at the Lincoln Regional Center.

The $250,000 will allow planning while another Regional Center structure is being remodeled to free space for the complex.

No construction funds are provided for a new medium-medium security prison or for construction of new housing facilities at the Penitentiary.

Instead, a $50,000 appropriation would allow development of a state plan for corrections.

Exon had recommended $1.5 million to begin construction of a $1.8 million diagnostic and evaluation complex, and $500,000 to begin prison improvements costing $7.4 million.

After Marvel's directive, the fiscal staff abandoned its recommendations to appropriate about $5 million to retire the bonds financing construction of headquarters buildings for the Game and Parks Commission and the Educational Television Commission.

Added to the staff recommendations by amendment were $375,000 for land acquisition for Papio Watershed dams in the Omaha area and $118,700 to surface the Cushing Coliseum on the Kearney State College campus.

Other major new spending projects include $516,500 for air conditioning structures operated by the Department of Public Institutions, $750,000 for remodeling at the Lincoln Regional Center and about $1.4 million for Game and Parks Commission projects other than the Papio system.

A $140,000 appropriation will equip the applied arts building at Wayne State College.

Hill pointed out that as things stand now between the two utilities, LES has little chance of becoming an NPPD partner.

Referring to numerous disputes, Hill stated, "Until those items are resolved, we have no intention of offering LES anything in exchange."

Hill said he believes those differences can be resolved. Regardless of those disputes, Hill said, "we're not trying in any way to stymie the Wyoming unit. In fact, I hope it comes on ahead of us."

But, NPPD still wants to own the transmission line to protect the existing NPPD grid system in the existing Nebraska.

"We don't want to make a profit on it," he volunteered.

Hill said even if LB686, now before the Legislature, is approved, "We're most concerned about interconnecting with our grid."

He admitted that NPPD and LES are on opposite sides over the bill which would give towns and power utilities the right to jointly finance and build power plants and transmission lines both within and outside Nebraska.

LES board members assured NPPD that Lincoln is not interested in owning the line, but is vitally interested in the rate NPPD would charge LES for transmitting power over that line.

LES legal counsel Norm Krivosha pointed out that the line would not be a Lincoln line, per se, but would belong to the MBSG which would be using that line to feed power to other participating utilities.

James Grahl, MBSG project coordinator for the Wyoming project, noted that a transmission study will get under way in mid March to study the location of the line and other related matters.

NPPD and joint systems power officials will meet to discuss the issue further.

Lincoln General Hospital Tabs Hewitt Assistant Administrator

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln General Hospital Administrator W. Robert Brungard announced that Jerry Hewitt of Kansas City, Mo., will join the hospital staff as assistant administrator on March 18.

Brungard told the Lincoln General Hospital and Lincoln Hospital Association board of trustees, meeting Thursday evening, that Hewitt "will bring the missing link to our management group."

Hewitt's duties will include systems analysis, development and implementation, associated education and training, and administration.

Brungard said he search for the new assistant administrator was based on the need for the hospital's ability to plan and develop internal operating systems without relying on outside consultants.

Eventually, Brungard said, he hopes Lincoln General can share with other hospitals its new internal systems, which are "vital to the growth of this hospital and its ability to react to the needs of the community."

Hewitt, with degrees in information systems management from Maryland University and in health care administration from George Washington University, most recently was associated with the American Hospital Association in Region 6, Kansas City, where he developed policy and education programs.

Previously, Hewitt taught at Southern Colorado State College and was assistant administrator of the U.S. Air Force Academy Hospital for three years.

A hospital systems analyst, Hewitt is also accredited to teach statistics, operational research mathematics, computer science and management.

In other business, Brungard told the board that Lincoln General's surgicenter should open on the May 1 target date.

The surgicenter will provide outpatient surgical service for elective minor surgery not requiring hospitalization. Charges for surgery will remain the same, Brungard said, but there will be no bed charge for surgicenter patients who will need attention for one to three hours.

"Tentative provisions are planned for housing the patients before and after their surgery in one of our existing patient care units," now used by cardiology services, he said.

"By minor physical adjustments and partitioning, we will be able to divide this area into two parts," Brungard said, "allowing us to provide adequate space and facilities for both services" as required for efficiency.

In January, Brungard said, Lincoln General "witnessed the highest average daily census ever recorded (229.1) for adult and pediatric patients generated by the heavy use of medical-surgical services."

On one day, he said, the hospital recorded 258 patients. It appears likely the number of patients in February will equal or surpass the January mark.

The January record was an increase of 25.7% from December 1973, and was 4.7% over the previous record of 218.9, set in May 1973, he said.

"The high activity resulted in a new record for patient service revenue," Brungard said. "Revenue increased 24% from December and was 10.9% greater than the previous record of $667,211 of August 1973."

Actual expenses of $11,409 in January represented a 9.4% increase from December, to another record high, owing to the greater activity and inflationary factors.

The Council membership includes representatives from governing boards of the University of Nebraska, the state colleges and the state technical community colleges.

'All Minority Groups' Plan Rally, March

An informal organization of "all minority groups" has scheduled a rally and march for Friday in Lincoln to protest "injustices taking place in various communities."

Dennis Berkheim, a spokesman for the organization, said the rally would begin at noon on the 15th Street Mall near the University of Nebraska.

After speeches there, he said, the group will march to the Capitol steps and hear State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha speak.

"Blacks, chicanos, Indians, poor whites and political activists have been harassed, murdered, railroaded into prison and generally victimized by the police, government officials and judges," said Berkheim.

He said details of those charges would be discussed at a news conference tentatively set for 11 a.m. Saturday at a location not yet identified.

He said the man was missing his watch and his wallet. Teletype messages have been sent to Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and other areas of Nebraska with the information. His fingerprints are also being checked by the FBI.

SE Tech College Future Reviewed

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College board, meeting here to consider bond financing problems at its Fairbury campus, Thursday got into a wide-ranging discussion about the future of the former junior college in the southern-most part of the district.

The special meeting was called to ask board consideration of alternatives for meeting bond financing obligations on the Fairbury campus dormitory.

But before the meeting had adjourned, the board had discussed not only uses for the dorm but also whether athletic programs were appropriate for the campus and what kind of programming the campus should emphasize in future years.

The board took two actions related specifically to the dorm. In one, it asked the Fairbury campus administration to prepare reports on campus enrollment history and projections and on student attitudes toward dorm living and athletic programs.

In another, it asks its attorney to meet with attorneys for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to clarify the legal status of the bond indebtedness on the dorms.

HUD, which owns the bonds on the dorm, and the National Bank of Commerce, bond trustee, have told the college board they would turn their backs on legal issues if the college decided to renovate part of the dorm for other uses.

Area President Robert Eicher suggested at a meeting earlier in February that it might be possible to convert part of the partially filled dorm for other uses and use other college funds to pay rent for that space, thus fulfilling payment obligations on the dorm.

But Douglas Curry, the college board attorney, said Thursday he was worried that such a plan might violate the spirit, if not the letter, of a state statute that prohibits use of tax money for payment of revenue bonds.

When a HUD official read part of the bond indenture agreement which says the bonds "shall" be paid either with use fees or tax funds, Board Chairman Merle Ebers of Seward suggested the "whole contract was illegal to start with."

"Maybe you don't have a dorm and we don't either," Ebers told the HUD official. "Maybe we need to renegotiate the whole thing."

That discussion led board member Donald Ferguson of Lincoln to suggest attorneys meet to try to determine the legal status of the contract. And Ferguson also proposed the study to establish whether future campus enrollments will keep the dorm at least partially occupied.

It was Ferguson's second motion, which also passed, that prompted the discussion on the future of the campus.

Ferguson suggested doing away with all competitive athletics at the campus, emphasizing intramural programs and athletics in its place.

Board member Howard Manschreck of Fairbury said perhaps the Fairbury campus should concentrate on four or five programs it can do well and do away with other efforts.

Ebers told other board members he will propose at a March 19 meeting discontinuing all interscholastic athletics as of July 1 and increasing dorm rates at least $200 per year.
